Cave Man Not So Old, Study Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Evidence that ancestors of modern man in Europe are perhaps 35,000 years younger than previously believed was presented to an International Symposium on Anthropology here recently.

A new study, based on radioactive carbon content of charred human bones, indicates that the cave man was extinct in Europe by 1,300 B. C. It was presented by Dr. Kenneth Page Oakley, geologist of the British Museum of Natural History.

Earlier estimates had placed decline of cave cultures and beginnings of modern European civilization somewhere between 200 and 500 centuries B. C., with most authorities accepting the latter figure as more probable.

Line That Isn't There Gives North America A Third Coast

WASHINGTON— Across the breadth of North America runs an invisible line. Its ends dip into Atlantic and Pacific. It ties two nations together, mixes up their geography, and gives the continent a "third coast."

The line is Uncle Sam's 3,986-mile international boundary with Canada.

Usually thought of as a land frontier, actually the Canadian border is wetter than it is dry, the National Geographic Society says. Winding from Grand Manan Channel off the coast of Maine to the straits south of Vancouver Island, the line crosses 2,198 miles of water to only 1,788 miles of dry land.

Unarmed and Undefended

Since the American Revolution this boundary, drawn originally through unsettled wilderness, has never brought an appeal to force. It stands today as the longest unfortified frontier in the world.

At the eastern end of the line, however, a little-remembered dispute nearly precipitated a war with Great Britain in 1839. The issue was the "St. Croix River" specified in the original border treaty. Partisans claimed different rivers were the St. Croix.

Acadian axemen crossed over into Maine to chop its towering pines, and New Brunswick tried to collect taxes from the territory. Maine marched twelve companies o militia north through deep snow to stand glowering guard over its rights.

This bloodless "Aroostook War" was settled finally by compromise in 1842's Webster-Ashburton Treaty. Later, it was revealed that the United States held two maps backing up Britain's claims to Maine territory, and the British Foreign Office had a secret map proving Maine's claim to 5,500 square miles of New Brunswick.

As it was drawn, the compromise line makes a cape named West Quoddy Head the easternmost point of land in the United States. Maine's northernmost town, still called Township 20, can be reached by road only by way of Canada, and includes houses split through the front parlor by the boundary.

Northwest Angle

Because Benjamin Franklin, John Jay, and John Adams didn't know where the Mississippi River began, there is a 130-square-mile chunk of U. S. territory north of Minnesota's mainland that is completely surrounded by water and Canada. This "Northwest Angle," hitched to Manitoba, is cut off from the rest of Minnesota by waters of the Lake of the Woods.

Here the International Boundary reaches its most northerly point, 49 degrees 23' 04.5" North latitude, at the upper corner of Lake of the Woods. The treaty writers meant to run the line west from this point to the Mississippi, the nation's western border until the Louisiana Purchase. But the Mississippi's source is not that far north.

Thus the line drops south again to the 49th parallel, which it follows the rest of the way west across the original treaty's "Stony Mountains," now the Rocky Mountains.

Actually the line does not match the slight curvature of the parallel, but marches in straight-line spurts between aluminum-bronze or iron monuments averaging 1 1/3 miles apart. The United States gains 30 extra acres thereby, in slices no more than 1.8 feet wide.

54 40 and Juan de Fuca

Drawing the western end of the line also nearly brought war, until

Heavy Storm Hits Central Yangtse

HONG KONG (AP)—The Chinese Communist news agency belatedly announced recently that a storm on Sept. 24 hit the Central Yangtse area, flooding 40,000 acres, collapsing 28 dams and affecting 10$,-000 persons.

The report raised speculation here because this is the vulnerable mid-Yangtse-Tungting Lake region where the Chinese Reds claimed they had eliminated flood danger by an elaborate system of dikes, dams and impounding basins.

When the Reds announced completion of the project last spring, engineers here said the type of flood-control job described would require up to five years to complete. The Reds said they did it in three months, using "improved Russian methods."

Interest In Stamps Teaches Geography

By SYD KRONISH

(P) Newsfeatures Stamp Editor

Ever hear of the Maldive Islands, Timor, Macau, Fezzan, Andorra, Ifni?

Well, millions of stamp collectors not only know where these places are, but also can recite many interesting facts about them.

The little country of Andorra, for example, is an autonomous and independent state on the Franco-Spanish frontier. Its 196 square miles consists of a cluster of mountain valleys, no part of which is below 3,000 feet. Andorra recently issued its first airmail stamp, but doesn't even have an airfield!

The Comoro Islands, which has less combined land area than Rhode Island, recently issued its first postage stamp. The Comoros dot the entrance to the Mozambique Channel between Africa and Madagascar. The inhabitants were governed by Arabian sultans until the French assumed control in 1841.

A Lot of Kibitzers

When an error occurs on a postage stamp inveterate collectors immediately jump to point out the mistake. This happened when the Republic of Korea issued a set of 32 stamps honoring 16 members of the United Nations who had been fighting there. Each stamp depicted the flag of the country together with the Korean flag. But a grievous error was soon noted. Italy was represented with the old flag of the Italian monarchy with the crown and arms of the House of Savoy. Much chagrined, the Korean postal authorities replaced the stamps with ones showing the new flag of the Italian republic.

The Italian government also was faced with a vexing problem not long ago. It planned to issue a stamp honoring Guido Monaco who, it is claimed, invented musical notes some 900 years ago. But the authorities couldn't decide whether Monaco had a beard or was clean shaven. A life size statue in a Florence gallery portrayed him with a long beard. A miniature of him discovered in Vienna showed him with the clean-shaven features of a monk.

While the government pondered the whisker problem, the townspeople of Arezzo, his native village, were divided into two camps: pro-beard and anti-beard.

Where Others Come From

In the Indian Ocean off the coast of Africa lies a little group of islands called the Seychelles. A British Crown Colony, they issue a couple of stamp sets each year.

Some other stamp-issuing nations in remote corners of the globe are: Sarawak, a British colony in the northwestern part of Borneo bordering on the South China Sea; The Maldive Islands, a group of 13 islands in the Indian Ocean about 400 miles southwest of Ceylon, Yemen, a little Arabian kingdom bordering on the Red Sea; Timor, the eastern portion of an island of the same name in the Malay Archipelago off the northern coast of Australia.

To all our friends and patrons go our heartfelt wishes for a Christmas that will bring new happiness to all mankind.

Some Strange Fishes Fish For Other Fish

WASHINGTON.—One of the most patient and skillful of fishermen is another fish, a curious creative possessed of a built-in fishing rod and aptly called the angler fish.

The angler fish is not capable of much underwater speed, and obtains its food—smaller fish— by dangling a "bait" at the end of the rod to attract dinner.

In the National Geographic Society's new Book of Fishes, edited by Society Vice President John Oliver La Gorce, Louis Mowbray, former Curator of the Bermuda Government Aquarium, writes of the angler in a chapter entitled "Certain Citizens of the Warm Seas."

"The approach of an angler fish to its chosen victim," Dr. Mowbray says, "is a lesson in patience, and its use of the 'fishing rod' is a work of art.

"Literally, there is an appendage, which may be raised or lowered at will, situated on the head of the angler fish between the eyes and the mouth. In the outer extremity of the rod is a filamentous growth, resembling a small worm which is dangled frantically in front of the small fish to attract its attention."

The angler remains completely immobile while presenting the bait, only moving, and then very slowly, if the prey is not sufficiently attracted by the "worm", which is quickly withdrawn if the smaller fish strikes. This is likely to be the victim's last movement, because the angler by this time is sufficiently close to open its huge mouth and swallow its dinner.

American Fishes Shown

All the more common fresh and saltwater fish found in North American waters are shown in color plates in "The Book of Fishes," and their habits, size and value as food or game are explained.

The book explodes some inaccurate beliefs about fish. It points out that huge manta rays, or devilfish, are harmless creatures despite their forbidding appearance, and explains that such ordinarily voracious fish as sharks and barracuda can be "civilized" and seldom attack when regularly fed in captivity.

Various types of sport fishing are thoroughly explained, from still fishing for catfish in midwestern streams to goggle fishing in California and the search for tarpon in Florida.

The salt in the oceans, if extracted, would be sufficient to cover the entire United States with a layer one and one-half miles deep.

Coordinate Hats With Hair Style; Simplicity Without Severity Is Versatile Arrangement

By ALICIA HART

How often have you tried on a hat you thought divine only to be disappointed because the line of your hair or its disinclination to stay where you combed it, spoiled the line of the hat?

A good hair style —hewing close to the head contours, short enough to keep from flying away from the hat in back, sleek yet with enough softness for flattery — will take care of this hair-hat problem for you.

A hair stylist will shape your hair for this effect. Have the hair thinned out if there is too much fullness in proportion to the size of your face and the back of your skull. But if your hair is very thin and your head small in proportion to your body, you will avoid a pinhead look if you have a permanent, just for body.

Don't have a permanent at all if your hair has enough body and trainability to make it possible for you to brush and comb soft waves into place easily. Ask your hair stylist if he can cut soft waves into your hair. If you do have a permanent, never let it be given to you tightly, for it is completely unadaptable to your changing hair-style wishes when this is done.

Many girls are sticking to the extremely-short-in-back look, although on many others you do see the hair much longer than for many seasons. This does not mean a return to the "glamor bob" of the '30's and early '40's. Hair is seldom seen longer than a line level with the end of your chin.

V. George of Fifth Avenue

Girls who love hats do well to have hair styles that coordinate well with them. This hairdo (above left) clings to the head contour simply and sleekly, with ears covered and saucy side bang. Head-hugging hat (above right) continues the softly broken sideline of the hair arrangement.

These simple styles look wonderful with small suit hats, but take equally well to the little "crowns" and "tiarras" being worn for evening.

Whatever the style of the season in hair, it must be adapted to you. If you have a long neck, for example — considered by many a mark of great beauty —let your hair frame it, even though it is longer than what "they" are wearing.

Always keep in mind the ideal of the oval face and have your hair styled to bring your face closer to that ideal. Don't let the beautician go ahead with his scissors until you have thoroughly discussed the result with him. Ask his opinions and then modify your own if you think necessary, but don't be hurried into doing so.

When the styling is finished, be sure to have him teach you how to comb it. This may sound a little elementary, but when you do have the lesson you will see that proper combing is a fine art to be mastered.

Woman Coaches Annual Harvard Chorus Show

BOSTON (AP) —For the first time in the 150-year history of Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club, a woman will have a hand in the annual show. She's Dolly Neggemeyer, a former British dancer who is now a top choreographer of stage, screen and television.

She taught the first precision chorus line seen on an American stage and also the first dancing line on TV. Now plumpish, Dolly is helping get the boys of the Harvard chorus line in step. This is her first experience with a male chorus line.

Russians Confused By American Slang

NEW YORK (AP)—Russian delegate Georgi P. Arkadiev got mixed up over American slang in the U. N. Economic and Social Council recently.

Attacking the United States in general, he referred to a newspaper headline which said striking workers were told to get back on the job or be "fired." Arkadiev interpreted the word "fired" to mean workers would be shot if they didn't return to their jobs.

The Mexican delegate, Luciano Joublanc-Rivac explained to the Russian that being "fired" in American slang meant merely to lost one's job.

Pay Attention As Child Talks, It Will Help Him

By ALICIA HART

If your child of three or four suddenly begins to stutter, you are naturally upset. However, before you let it panic you, remember that this is the age of his most rapid speech development.

Each new word he hears he wants to use and he loves to talk more than his ability will let him. He may be talking so much that you no longer hear him and do not listen. This frustrates him and leads to further stuttering. Or possibly he hasn't enough to do.

Have you provided him with enough play equipment of the simple creative type such as blocks, clay, paints and sand that stimulates his imagination? If he gets bored with one activity, lead him into another so that he can be doing instead of talking. Does he have enough companionship with other children? With them, he will have to listen some of the time.

Above all, never call attention to his stuttering. Just listen patiently until he gets the sentence out. Don't tell him he talks too much, because this will make him too conscious of his talking. And avoid correcting him when his grammar is all wrong—even to mixing up his pronouns. He is too young to learn grammar. Pay attention instead to your own speech because you are setting the example he is trying to follow.

Talking Parrot Greets Customers

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—People who patronize a small homey cafe on the south side of this Arkansas oil capital usually get something for their nickel besides a cup of coffee.

Pedro, the parrot pet of the cafe, often gives the customer a conversation. Depending on his mood of the moment, Pedro greets patrons with a clear, unmistakable wolf whistle, a friendly "Hello," maybe a hospitable "Come in" or just blank scrutiny.

In parting, Pedro may tell them "Come back," "Goodbye" or "Bye Bye". The bird once told a newcomer pettishly, "Shut the door, country boy! It's cold."

His owners, Mr. and Mrs. Blondie Wells, have taught him such tricks as imitating an airplane motor when one of the pilots approaches, imitating a fire siren, and mocking the bark of a dog.

GI Stork Gets Landing Orders

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The stork, which has enjoyed unlimited landing privileges at Scott Air Force Base Hospital, now has orders to land at the base not more than 60 times a month. On any trips over the quota the stork must find its own civilian landing facilities.

Servicemen stationed overseas whose wives live in Southern Illinois and neighboring state previously enjoyed free heir delivery at the base hospital. An increase in the number of families living at the base to approximately 1,500 prompted the quota for the maternity ward.

Fewer Veterans In Colleges This Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of veterans in college this year is 40 per cent below the 1951 figure, according to a recent survey by the Office of Education. Seventeen per cent of all male students are attending college this year under provisions of the World War II GI bill.

The survey also shows that total enrollment in the 130 largest universities in the country is down 1.7 per cent below that of 1951. Women students make up about 35 per cent of all college students this year, the survey reports.

Everyone Is Street Cleaner In Canton

HONG KONG (AP)—In Communist Canton, everyone is a street cleaner. The newspaper Sing Tao Jih Pao says in an underground dispatch that authorities ruled that every resident must put aside five days each month to clean up the city.

They have to sweep the streets, dispose of garbage and flush the city's drainage works. Communist inspectors keep a check and fine anyone who fails to work or whose work is inefficient.

May your Christmas day and the days ahead be as warm and bright as the candlelight on your tree.

'Hot Foot' Keeps Pigeons Off Roof

NEW YORK —The best way to keep pigeons off public buildings is to give them the "hot foot."

The British Information Service reports that a slender electric wire is run along ledges on which the birds usually perch. This transmits a weak shock once a second. Any bird coming in contact with the wire usually takes off immediately. A number of large buildings in Birmingham, England, have tried it successfully, according to the report.

'Meanest Thief'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Another candidate for the "meanest thief" title is the burglar who broke into a general store recently and stole about $1,000 worth of groceries and merchandise. The thief also took $25 in change from a jar containing contributions for flowers for a funeral.

How wonderful if we could keep Christmas Cheer alive the year long.

NEW YORK (AP)—New powerful antibiotics and drugs may result from research involving British beer, reports the British Information Service here. Scientists from several countries, including the United States, are observing the tests.

Nepal Seeks Privacy To Change Government

WASHINGTON—Nepal, prototype of Shangri La, returned briefly to its inscrutable past by closing its borders to foreigners for six weeks this summer pleading a need for privacy to reorganize a government reft by the familiar cleavage between communism and Western ideology.

Until 1948, fewer than 300 Europeans and Americans ever had visited the sequestered mountain kingdom, land of tinkling temple bells and valiant Gurkha soldiers. These outsiders had been allowed to see only the capital city of Katmadu and the all but inaccessible valley in which it lies.

Expedition Authorized

But in 1948, says the National Geographic Society, enlightened Nepalese officials generously permitted a scientific expedition cosponsored by the Society, the Smithsonian Institution and Yale University to collect birds and small animals in the mysterious interior.

About the size of New York and Connecticut combined, Nepal ascends from the steaming Tarai —tiger-infested forest and cropland along her southern border with India—to the majestic, snowy Himalayas on the Tibetan frontier. Mt. Everest, world's highest peak, Nepal shares with Tibet. Recently the Nepalese government has allowed climbers to attack the giant from the hitherto untried south side.

Newars, the people who originally inhabited the country, has an artistic skill which particularly expresses itself in rich wood carving. They are custodians of the greatest known collection of Sanskrit manuscripts. In 1786 they were conquered by the Gurkhas, who had been driver from India by the Muslims.

These swart, martial people have been predominant in the land ever since. Among the world's bravest soldiers, Gurkhas fought in British Empire armies during the Indian Mutiny of 1857 and the two World Wars. More than one Victoria Cross, England's highest award for heroism, adorns old Gurkha soldiers retired to the life of Nepalese hill country villagers.

Until the most recent times, Nepalese government was a despotism, with all power in the hands of hereditary prime ministers. Few amenities came the way of the kingdom's 7,000,000 souls. Rulers all too often failed to survive frequent and bloody palace revolutions.

Nepal's main worry at present is the possibility of Chinese Communist infiltration from Tibet. Of direct invasion she has little fear. Himalayan passes are rugged, and astride them stand the Gurkhas.

A thousand ways to say it, yet its meaning is singular. A Merry Christmas to all.

Standard Mailboxes Aid Rural Mailman

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It has cost R. Martin Williams almost $500 but the mailboxes on his rural route are losing their hodgepodge look. Boxes that once were staggered along the highway now stand with military precision in neat, even rows to expedite delivery and pickups. Many wear a new coat of paint; others have a new signal flag.

The 62-year-old postman has eight more years to go with the department and he believes in making things easy for himself so he started the remodeling job himself. Before Williams took over in November, the carrier frequently had to leave his car and deliver mail on foot.

"There were too many ups and downs for me," said Williams, so he went to work with lumber, nails and paint. He's already spent $295 and expects to spend about $200 more before his project is completed.

When it is, he will be able to reach all 434 boxes without leaving the driver's seat since all small boxes will be 44 inches from the ground and all large ones 40 inches —as per regulations.

Short Search Brings Back Missing Baby

BUFFALO (AP)—Mrs. Donald E. Dymock left her 6-month-old daughter Patricia asleep in her buggy in front of the house one morning recently and 15 minutes later she discovered to her horror that both baby and buggy were missing.

She and her husband notified police who sent out a city-wide alarm. The baby and buggy were found about an hour later in a clump of bushes 1½ blocks from her home by a boy on his way to school. Who the buggy-pusher was is still a mystery.

Swiss Doctor Asks Ban On Auto Racing

BASEL, Switzerland (AP)—Automobile races are directly responsible for the increase in fatal road accidents in Switzerland, according to Dr. Carl Haffter, head of the psychitaric clinic of the University of Basel.

In a full-page article in the newspaper Basler Nachrichten, Dr. Haffter declared that the annual Grand Prix of Switzerland at Bren gave a psychological encouragement to wild driving and should be banned. The races are watched every year by some 60,000 spectators. Since they were resumed in 1947, 10 persons have been killed and more than 30 seriously hurt in track accidents.

Dr. Haffter's article suggested that automobile drivers among the spectators developed both an urge for excessive speed and a callous disregard for human life through watching the races.

Columbus Captain Discovered Opossum

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The discoverer of the American opossum was a ship captain of Columbus, Vicente Yanez Pinzon, says Dr. Carl G. Hartman in his recently published book, "Possums."

The discovery was made Feb. 8, 1500, and the opossum was later presented at the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, says the author who is now associate director of the Ortho Research Foundation, Martin, N. J.

The opossum young is born an embryo and incubates in the abdominal pouch, a process which Dr. Hatrman has observed and recorded pictorially in his book.

Germany Is Giving Japan Competition

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's chief competitor in export trade to Southeast Asia is West Germany, according to the business newspaper Nihon Keizai.

The economic journal noted West Germany exported $118,559,000 worth of goods to the Southeast Asia areas during the 1952 January-August period compared to $164,667,000 from Japan in the same period.

According to government statistics, Indonesia was Japan's best customer, importing $47,298,000. India was West Germany's top customer with imports totaling $36,471,000.

TOURIST RECORD

TOKYO (AP)—The Japan Travel Bureau expects 1952 to break all records for tourist travel. It predicts a total of 72,000 tourists will visit Japan by the end of the year on the basis of travel figures thus far. The old record was 42,000, set before the war.

Government Turns Down Increase In Ceiling On Copper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The suspension of domestic copper price control or the raising of copper price ceilings has been rejected by the government.

The action, announced yesterday by Economic Stabilizer Michael DiSalle, also applies to copper alloy and brass mill scrap.

DiSalle said the move should help bring to market copper supplies believed to have been withheld recently in anticipation of a suspension or lifting of ceiling prices.

He did not say how much of an increase the industry had asked. But he said he approved the action of the Office of Price Stabilization, and so did Defense Mobilizer Henry H. Fowler.

The current ceiling for domestic copper is 24½ cents a pound.

Reds Hit Line At T-Bone Hill

By MILO FARNETI

SEOUL (AP) — Chinese Communists struck through bitter day-before-Christmas cold today in a fierce attempt to puncture the Allied line at T-Bone Hill in Western Korea. Allied artillery almost completely destroyed the first wave of Reds, the U. S. Eighth Army reported, and U. N. soldiers turned back the others in hand-to-hand fighting.

High over North Korea, Allied Sabre jets roared into battle with an estimated 60 Russian-made MIG jets, the U. S. Fifth Air Force called it "a clawing free-for-all." In dogfights all over the North Korean skies, Sabre pilots probably destroyed two MIGs and damaged nine, the Air Force said.

The Eighth Army said a Chinese batalion of about 750 men attacked Allied trenches and bunkers on frozen T-Bone Hill, west of Chorwon. The battalion was supported by about 2,600 rounds of artillery—an intense barrage for a small area.

Red troops reached outposts of the hill between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. but Allied soldiers, braced by reinforcements and a thunderous artillery barrage of their own, held fast and never were in danger of being overrun, an Eighth Army staff officer said.

The Reds gave up about 4 a.m.

Pilgrims Flock To Bethlehem, Find Inns Full

By WILTON WYNN

Bethlehem (AP)—By the thousands, the faithful came to Bethlehem today and once more, as it was on the first Christmas nearly 2,000 years ago, there was no room at the inns.

Arab and Israeli border guards relaxed their frontier regulations to let the pilgrims approach the holy places of Christianity. The thousands of visitors filled every room and every bed in the hotels, hostels and pensions of the Arab section of Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Jericho and Ramallah.

Led By Star

At 8 a.m. today the Mandelbaum Gate into the Israeli part of Jerusalem opened to admit 1,200 Arab Christians who live in Israel. They had special permission to visit relatives on the Arab side of the frontier dividing the holy city and to attend Christmas services tonight. They must be back in Israel by Christmas night.

Hundreds of foreign pilgrims also came through Israle and the Mandelbaum Gate. They will not be allowed to return home through the Jewish state, however.

Like the three wise men of long ago, the pilgrims today pressed toward Bethlehem. Tonight a brightly gleaming star atop the Church of the Nativity will lead them — as another star led the Magi—to the birthplace of the holy child.

Israel Opens Road

Christmas Eve was a day of ceremony and worship, climaxing tonight in the midnight services marking the birth of Christ.

Roman Catholic Patriarch Alberto Gori was to lead the procession to Bethlehem. Attended by four mounted constables, his party included the consular corps and United Nations officials from both sides of the frontier that has split the holy city since the Palestine War of 1948.

The official party from the Israeli side of the frontier traveled the traditional road from Jerusalem. Normally held by Israel and closed to the Arabs, the road was opened especially for the procession.

Climax At Midnight

The route lay past the tomb of Rachel to the Church of the Nativity, which marks the supposed birthplace of Christ. Representatives of the Orthodox and Armen-

Gangster Terrorism At New York Docks Tackled By FBI

By DON SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has been ordered by Atty. Gen. McGranery to move into the investigation of the New York waterfront, pictured in sworn testimony before the New York State Crime Commission as the focus of gangster terrorism.

Commission witnesses have described the waterfront as the locale of widespread bribery, extortion, shakedowns and strong arm tactics.

Evidence Piles Up

McGranery announced late yesterday that he was directing the FBI to undertake a federal investigation immediately.

"The Department of Justice," he said, "which has been watching the New York waterfront situation for months, now has sufficient evidence of federal law violations to warrant a full-scale investigation."

McGranery did not go into details in his statement, and Justice Department officials declined to elaborate.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declined comment, but in New York the chief investigator for the State Crime Commission, Joseph Kaitz, said the group would offer to the FBI "any and all assistance and information."

Rackets Bleed Industry

Dewey's long-time close associate, Herbert Brownell, is slated to replace McGranery as attorney general when the Eisenhower administration takes over Jan. 20.

Dewey, who instigated the State Crime Commission, has called the situation it spotlighted on the waterfront "a stench in the nostrils of the community." The commission has no power to punish wrongdoers but it can seek remedial legislation in Albany.

Its aim in the waterfront probe has been to seek background on dock rackets which are bleeding an estimated 350 million dollars annually from New York City's seven billion dollar a year shipping industry.

Nation Intent On Giving 1952 Happy Ending

By CHARLES E. MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — It has not been the best of years in many ways, this 1952. But Americans around the world are intent on giving it the happiest possible ending with the merriest possible Christmas to all.

There is not peace on earth. But nearly everywhere there are signs of good will.

Churches have reported the greatest revival of interest in any season of recent years. Charitable institutions have been heaped with gifts of money and goods and time.

The spirit of generosity and good will is reflected commercially too. There has been the biggest retail Christmas trade ever.

Cheer In Korea

What are Americans doing this season? The record speaks:

In Operation Santa Claus the military Air Transport Service is making the GI's dream come true: flying home for Christmas 56 servicemen and women who are blinded, paralyzed or amputees.

Some 65 guys and dolls in show business gave up their own holidays to entertain servicemen from Korea to Greenland.

Throughout Korea and Japan, American servicemen are giving Christmas parties and gifts to orphans of other nations.

In New York City at least 100,000 children will be entertained at big parties by charitable organizations.

In Itta Bena, Miss., where white teen-age vandals wrecked a nativity scene at Mississippi's new Negro college, hundreds of white citizens pitched in with Negro citizens to restore it for Christmas.

Parties For Orphans

A 27-year-old woman polio victim in Chicago, confined to an iron lung, faced eviction from her home with her 6-year-old son. The neighborhood came to her aid. Thus far $500 has been raised.

A group of Texas airmen stationed in Greenville, S. C., are throwing a big Christmas party for 80 little Negro children who expected a bleak Christmas. They

Report Critical Of Sen. McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate elections subcommittee was reported today to have reached virtual agreement on a report sharply critical of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and much less critical of his political enemy, Sen. Benton (D-Conn).

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Hennings (D-Mo), has conducted a long investigation of charges the two senators have flung at one another and which became issues in their campaigns for re-election.

Benton was defeated in November; McCarthy won re-election.

Benton, in a resolution filed with the Senate in August, 1951, sought the expulsion of McCarthy from Congress. He accused the Wisconsin lawmaker of fraud, perjury and deceit. McCarthy, in a counter resolution filed last spring, charged that Benton had protected Communists and Communist sympathizers while an assistant secretary of state in his pre-Senate career.

Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ), the elections subcommittee's vice chairman, had announced last week a report of findings in the two investigations would be handed down before Christmas Day. But the subcommittee says now its report will be delayed by the illness of Hennings, who is nursing a case of influenza.

Duke Of Edinburgh Invites Carolers In At Sandringham House

SANDRINGHAM, England (AP) — Carol singers were chorusing merrily outside Sandringham House—the royal lodge—last night when a tall, handsome man stepped out into the cold air.

"Wouldn't you like to come in?" asked the Duke of Edinburgh. "It must be cold outside."

The 20 villagers from nearby Dersingham accepted with pleasure and continued their caroling in the drawing room, led by plant nurseryman Leslie Tuck on his fiddle.

The listeners included Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the Duchess of Kent, and the latter's daughter Princess Alexandra.

Chickens Confiscated With Henhouse Still In Tennessee Hills

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Hamilton County officers destroyed a 2,000-gallon copper still yesterday and confiscated enough chickens to provide Christmas dinner for county prisoners.

Sheriff Rex Richey said the big moonshining outfit was being operated in a chicken house and some chickens were being kept around "as a blind."

"The prisoners at county jail are going to have the biggest chicken dinner for Christmas they've ever had," the sheriff said.

St. Louis Man Named Under Secretary Of Agriculture By Ike

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP) — President-elect Eisenhower today chose True D. Morse of St. Louis, Mo.—a Republican who was a Democrat until about 20 years ago—for the job of under secretary of agriculture in the new administration.

Morse, 56-year-old board chairman of a farm management service and editor of a farm publication, will serve as top aide to Ezra Taft Benson of Salt Lake City, secretary of agriculture-designate.

The nomination of Morse and others Eisenhower has named to key posts will go to the Senate for confirmation after the general takes office Jan. 20.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Benson recommended Morse — who was born on a Missouri farm. The job pays $17,500 a year.

Hagerty described Morse as an Eisenhower supporter during the campaign.

Morse is chairman of the board of Doane Agricultural Service of St. Louis, the oldest and largest farm management appraisal and farm research service in the country. He has been editor of the Doane Agriculture Digest since 1938.

He is vice president of the American Farm Economists Association and a past president of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

He is a member of the Christian (Disciples of Christ) church. He is president of his church in St. Louis and has a long record of church work there.

He was born on a farm at Carthage, Mo., Jan. 21, 1896. He was graduated from the Agriculture College of the University of Missouri in 1924. He was an agricultural economist at the university and also worked for the Missouri State Farm Bureau.

Eisenhower's selection of Morse came as the general made ready to spend Christmas in New York with his family, including three grandchildren, and in the wake of a conference on government reorganization and other matters with former President Hoover.

Parachute Drops Christmas Candy

TOKYO (AP) — A U. S. Air Force C47 today dropped 100 pounds of candy bars by parachute to youngsters on a tiny island off the Korean coast.

"Merry Christmas from the Kyushu Gypsies" was written in Korean on each box.

The transport plane flies a supply run between Kyusru, Japan, and Korea.

"We always fly low over this one tiny island," said Lt. Don Davis of Natchez, Miss., the pilot.

"We see the kids come out and wave at us, and we rock our wings in return."

So the crew began collecting candy bars. They decided to deliver them Chrismas Eve.

"We circled the island twice and attracted plenty of attention because we'd never done this before," said Lt. Edward H. Osmon of Akron, O., co-pilot.

"Then we heaved out the parachute container and watched the parachute drift down to the waiting kids. It landed near the village, so we know they got their Christmas presents in good shape."

Budenz Is Branded Professional Liar As He Names Reds

By RUSSELL BRINES

Washington (AP) — Vehement denials have come from several persons among the 30 scholars and officials for leading educational foundations named by Louis Budenz yesterday as members of the Communist party.

Budenz is the former managing editor of the Daily Worker, Communist paper published in New York City, who publicly renounced communism in 1945 and is now on the staff of Fordham University.

Ticks Off 30 Names

"A professional liar," he was called by one of the men he accused. "Absolutely and unqualifiedly false," another said of his testimony, given before a House committee wich is trying to determine whether the funds of tax-free foundations are being used for subversive activities.

Budenz has appeared numerous times before congressional committees and, he says, has recounted to the FBI at great length what he knows of Communist party activities.

In his appearance yesterday, he ticked off 30 persons — some of them well known—as being Communist party members before he quit in 1945. A list of names were read to him by Harold M. Keele, committee counsel. Budenz said he knew them to have been Communists from personal experience and from his access to party documents.

Yale Professor Included

Many of them had been described as Communists before, and some had denied it. But committee officials said Budenz for the first time described as a Red Thomas I. Emerson, now a professor at the Yale Law School.

In New Haven, Emerson said Budenz was "dreaming up things" and he declared: "I have never been a member of the (Communist) party and could not possibly have been listed as a member on their records."

Officials of the House group said Emerson received a grant this year from the Guggenheim Foundation.

Subversives On UN Staff To Be Ousted

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) said today a new move "is in the works to fire subversives from the staff at United Nations."

Wiley, a delegate to the U. N. General Assembly, made the disclosure after a telephone talk with Chairman Robert Ramspeck of the Civil Service Commission who, he said, will have a big part in touching off the house cleaning.

Ramspeck could not immediately be reached for comment.

Swifter Cleanup Urged

Eighteen U. S. citizens have been dismissed from U. N. jobs on the ground they were security risks, following a report by a federal grand jury in New York alleging widespread U. S. Communist infiltration of the U. N. staff. Wiley contends others are still on the payrolls of the U. N. Secretariat and of some of the organization's subordinate groups

Wiley's talk with Ramspeck followed a news conference at which the senator had urged a swifter cleanup and questioned whether the Truman administration planned to "sit on its dignity" and leave the problem for the Eisenhower administration to solve.

Full Details Promised

Today, however, Wiley said that "after my talk with Mr. Ramspeck I am encouraged to believe that President Truman meant business when he ordered the State and Justice Departments and civil service to jointly tackle the problem."

The senator said he now expects the three agencies, with Ramspeck as co-ordinator, will file with U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie "detailed statements giving the background of employes of questionable loyalty to this country," a step they have not taken until now.

Texan Plans Cruise Around The World In 18-Foot Outboard

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Alvin Robert Rogers, who crossed the Pacific Ocean in a 25-foot ketch five years ago, now plans to sail around the world in an 18-foot outboard motorboat.

Rogers, who is 35 and a native of Ft. Worth, Tex., plans to start from here, go down the Caribbean to the Panama Canal, then across 4,000 miles of ocean to Tahiti. This stage he calls the most dangerous but most interesting.

The 18-foot boat, named the Shark, is of stainless steel. Rogers designed it and it cost him about $500. He will power it with a 10-horsepower outboard motor.

Immigration Act Hits French Ship

since the new immigration statute

NEW YORK (AP)—The arrival today of the French liner Liberte, with a fourth of her crew facing possible shore leave refusals, provided the first direct application of the new McCarran-Walter Immigration Act only hours after it went into effect.

The Liberte, the world's fourth largest liner, is the first major transatlantic vessel to arrive here became law at a minute after midnight today. The arrival involves a provision of the law aimed at Communists, espionage agents and criminals.

Some 266 of the Liberte's crew of 974 must remain aboard during the three days the vessel will be here unless they can meet security requirements of the law after the vessel docks, the Justice Department said yesterday in Washington. Only three other crewmen were reported automatically inadmissible under the law.

An American immigration inspector was aboard the Liberte during her last round trip to screen the vessel's crew in advance of her arrival. The Justice Department's statement yesterday was based on a radio-telephone talk with the inspector.

Dolls For Churchill And Queen Detained

LONDON (AP) — Neither Queen Elizabeth II nor Prime Minister Churchill expected them, so two dolls—charmingly attired in Japanese costumes—were detained at London Airport today.

The dolls came by British Overseas Airways Comet airliner and were the gift of the Japanese Students Union to the monarch and her Prime Minister.

Teacher Stabs Wife, Kills Three Babies At San Jose, Calif.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—The sheriff's office said a young high school teacher climaxed an argument with his estranged wife by stabbing her, battering their three children to death and cutting his own throat late yesterday.

The children's bodies were found amidst broken Christmas decorations and toys.

Lies Near Death

The teacher, Archie Connett, 31, described by his principal as "competent, calm and one of our best teachers," lay near death today at Santa Clara County Hospital.

His wife Wynona, 28, who was stabbed twice and chased from her home at nearby Supertino, was recovering but still under sedatives.

She had not been told that Connett, after sending her screaming from the house, apparently had picked up the children by their heels and bashed them to death against the floor, furniture and walls.

They were Carl, 3 months; Teresa, 2½, and Michael, 4.

Sheriff's Capt. James Cunningham said Connett, who had been estranged from his wife for several months, came to her home two days ago to visit the children for the holidays.

Grabs Knife

But yesterday afternoon Mrs. Connett suggested he spend his nights at his apartment at San Lorenzo, 30 miles away. A violent argument followed.

Suddenly, Cunningham said, the teacher grabbed a knife and slashed Mrs. Connett. Not wounded seriously, she followed him into a large nursery-bedroom where Michael was playing with Carl.

"Don't hurt the kids," she yelled. But Connett slashed at her again and sent her screaming to a neighbor's house, then turned on the youngsters.

Gen. Clark Banks On Faith To Win

TOKYO (AP) — Gen. Mark W Clark told troops of his United Nations Command today that the faith expressed in the Christmas spirit "will bring us to our goal."

The U. N. commander's Christmas message said:

"The spirit of Christmas is an expression of hope that has existed for nearly two thousand years—the hope of peace on earth and good will toward men.

"Although the world has passed through many dark and critical times these past two thousand years, it is man's belief, however dark the hour may seem, that eventually the light of fellowship will show the way of peace on earth.

"This hope, through the centuries, has kept alive the promise of a world from which hatreds will be banished. The faith expressed in the spirit of Christmas, which has helped us and given us fortitude, will bring us to our goal.

"To all of you, this Christmas, I extend my warmest greetings and earnest hopes for the bright days to come."

Wreck Kills 27 On French Liner

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's director of internal security said today that 27 persons were known to have died in the wreck of the French liner Champollion and about 100 were injured in reaching the shore from the reef-grounded, split-in-half ship.

Skillful Levantine boatmen brought the last of the 328 passengers and crewmen through still-raging surf and jagged reefs yesterday, about 40 hours after the veteran liner was blown on a reef and split amidships some 500 yards offshore.

The latest estimate of the dead was only tentative and it was feared the casualty toll would rise. Some of the passengers jumped overboard—how many exactly was not known—and though 30 or so persons swam to shore, thousands of watchers crowded there saw a number of persons battered to death on the rocks just out of reach.

A lifeboat also capsized during the rescue efforts yesterday, plungmore persons to death.

County Ready For Christmas

Wishes for a "Merry Christmas" swelled in volume today as Delta County residents completed Christmas shopping and readying of gifts and their homes for observance of the Christmas holiday.

Churches throughout the area are adorned with creches and other traditional decorations to celebrate the Birthday of Christ. Church organists and choirs have planned programs for the special Christmas services.

The coming of Christmas, with its glad tidings, has been heralded for the past several days by students, choral groups and musicians who have given numerous Christmas programs.

Baskets Distributed

This is a joyous occasion for many in the nation, not only because of the traditional "Christmas spirit" but because sons and daughters and other close persons are home, from Korea, other military posts, work and school.

A feeling of confidence seems to permeate the community, and shoppers in the area have given stores a record sales volume as they prepared for this Yuletide, which comes just before inauguration of a Republican president for the first time in 24 years.

Today the Salvation Army and American Legion were busy distributing more than 200 baskets to the needy, as were numerous thoughtful residents in the area

75 In Hospital

The turkey in many homes is about to be cooked or is already on its way to becoming a tasteful dinner, and numerous other good foods, including fruit soups, pork pies and lutefisk, are being prepared.

Only eight persons will spend Christmas in the Delta County jail. There the usual diet will be abandoned for a Christmas dinner of fried chicken, mashed potatoes, rutabagas and dessert.

St. Francis hospital will have about 75 patients tomorrow, and these will be served a turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

Kindness and Love

There will also be chicken, two salads, fresh frozen vegetables, mashed potatoes and ice cream.

Not to be forgotten are the children, who await the arrival of Santa Claus tonight. They're taking a last long look at their favorite toy in the window shops, with a fervent hope that it will be under their tree or in their stocking tonight.

Tomorrow it'll be off to church for them, to mark the birthday of He who taught the world kindness and love. So it will be for adults, if they haven't forgotten.

A CHRISTMAS CHECK of $25 to aid in distributing holiday gifts to needy families of Escanaba was presented last night to the Salvation Army by the Escanaba chapter of the SPEBSQSA. Handing the check here to Capt. Thompson, commander of the Escanaba unit, is Harold Valentine, while Barbershoppers Ken Thompson (left), S. E. Decker, Fritz Provencher and Ed Olson (right) look on. Many Problems At Inauguration

(Robert C. Ruark is enroute to South Africa and will take his vacation during the month of January. There has been some difficulty in receiving his current columns and United Feature Syndicate, which distributes Ruark's column, is substituting a guest columnist, Frederick C. Othman.)

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

WASHINGTON.—My spies in the carpentering trade report that the $15-dollar-per-seat inaugural parade stands in front of the White House are made of the finest fir. Down the street in the $3 section they're built of pine.

Why this should be I do not know unless it is that pine is more splintery and hence less fashionable. I mean the inaugural committee has got problems. Drop into headquarters on Pennsylvania Avenue if you want to see normal folks turning wild-eyed.

Seats long since have been allocated. So have hotel rooms. So have ducats for the big ball. Still, the folks come, in person and via mail, demanding tickets.

Boy Scout Ushers

Mostly these have been distributed to state Republican organizations, and if you really want to sit in the cold for four hours and then get your feet tramped on at the dance the same night, I suggest you see the poor devils with tickets in your own state capital. They've got their troubles, too.

Here, for instance, we have the man in charge of ushers. These are going to be Boy Scouts. He's now trying to figure some way of notifying them all at the last moment as to what kind of clothes to wear. He hopes not raincoats. Each Scout will be equipped with a rag to dry the chairs in case of showers. He'll also have a snow shovel handy, just in case.

Then there's the harried citizen who thought it would be a simple job to assemble the floats that will rumble down the historic route of Presidents. Each state gets one float, depicting progress, or patriotism, or some other such laudable theme.

Tickets for Floats

Trouble is that some states have more than one Republican organization. Each splinter of the GOP in these cases wants to run its own float. Wants is hardly the word. Insists is better. This is because the people operating floats get a small wad of tickets to the various affairs and as the great day approaches these become more precious than money. Mere money, in fact, can't buy 'em.

Some state Republican organizations (I promised not to tell which ones) are distributing their tickets to those who will travel here by special train and then set up light housekeeping in their own Pullmans parked on the outskirts. A fellow who refuses to sleep in the railroad cars gets no place to sit at the parade.

Only those with invitations are allowed to pay for the privileges of going to the Inaugural Ball. This will be held in the National Guard Armory, scene of revivals, auto shows, and super-barn dances. It is a cavernous structure with a capacity of perhaps 8,000 people.

Crowded At Dance

Three times that many, at least, demand the privilege of attending. Those who do get in will be dressed in claw-hammer coats or low-necked evening gowns. Whether most of them will be able to hear the music is doubtful; few of them will find places to sit down between dances. I do not believe I shall be able to make it.

Only citizens I know who are completely satisfied by the prospect, with possible exception of the Messrs. Eisenhower and Nixon, are the members of the painting crew at one of our leading hotels. Day after day and year after year they spend their time painting vacant rooms pale gray. Never any other color. Just gray. This gets a little dull.

Inauguration week there'll be no pointing. Every room, painted or not, will contain at least two paying guests. The boss painter intends to spend the week doing the interior of his own house. Every room a different color and bright to boot.

Wild Jackson Broncho Caught

JACKSON (AP)—Beetlebum probably consoled himself today with the fact that winter's back and regular feed and shelter will be worth the price of freedom until spring's sprouts are out.

Beetlebum is a 14-year-old broncho gelding, which had gamboled over the farm lands of Central Michigan for the last six months, nibbling on gardens, raiding cattle feed lots, kicking cows away from salt blocks and scaring whoever suited his fancy.

Beetlebum surrendered Sunday at the end of a rope and meekly resumed his chores of being a saddle horse for Carol Allen, 14-year-old daughter of his owner, C. L. Allen, of nearby Michigan Center.

But the broncho, who spent his colthood on an Oklahoma range had had his day again the wide open spaces. He'd defied all efforts to catch him until Sunday, when 15 mounted riders from the Hoot and Holler Ranch of Manchester cornered him in a barnyard.

Even then, his horse-mounted-human pursuers needed an assist from a toppled fence, in which he tangled a hoof and fell, after one psuedo cowboy had a lariat around his neck. As he scrambled up 15-year-old Charlie Edwards looped another rope around his neck. As the lines came taut, Bettlebum gave up.

He was led through the fog in the gathering dusk of a near-freezing first day of winter to a warm stall—and a meal of corn.

Around 1,000 spectators followed the capture of Bettlebum, most of them from cars. News had spread of Beetlebum's high disdain for attempts to corral him Saturday, when he led five mounted riders and a posse of 40 afoot on a merry chase, finally jumping a four-foot fence when it looked as if he were cornered.

Williams Signs Four New Acts

LANSING (AP) — All four acts passed by last week's special session of the Legislature were signed into law Monday by Gov. Williams. They included:

Authority to school districts to borrow from banks against future state aid payments.

Creating the office of township trustee to replace justices of the peace removed from township boards by the State Supreme Court.

Appropriating $200,000 to continue construction of a medical center at Wayne University.

The last bill did not get immediate effect, so it will not take effect for 90 days, well after the Legislature is back in session again.

The Gift that lasted

Tonight as we tie the last bow, on the very last Christmas package, test the last tree light, put the finishing touches on the preparations for the morrow's dinner, there's a hush comes over nearly every household. We pause to take a deep breath and say, "Well, now, we're all ready for Christmas!" This hush of expectancy, is more than a pause for relaxation. It's typical of every Christmas, back through the ages. It's the symbolic lull before a great event. Our earliest religious instructions all contain mention of the hush that filled the Great night — those centuries ago.

No matter how men misconstrue Christmas, it is the one gift to all mankind that has endured the years. Gloss this occasion over with materialism, if you will, make more of its feasting than of its significance, as is done, blind ourselves to the true meaning of this greatest of all occasions, as we may — yet come this sacred hour of the year — and the same hush falls, just as it fell in the little country town — those generations ago. A pause, then the glad ringing of church bells on the night air and in one second the whole structure of materialism crashes, and the truth of Christmas comes rushing into every consciousness.

Solely because no other birthday has ever given the world so much, the story of this great day is written deep in the heart of everyone who has ever heard it. The one magic touch of the great "silent night" releases our deepest sentiments — a warm glow of fellowship and good will among men, as we all; in tune with this great miracle, wish one another a sincere

Merry Christmas

Faith In Christ Banishes Fears Barring Way To Brotherhood

CHRIST, whose birthday this is, personifies for the whole western world the great binding force of Love and the Brotherhood of Man. Even peoples who do not live under Christianity gasp this underlying meaning in His life.

Progress always has been uneven in the search for that happy state when the Brotherhood of Man should be fully realized. In the very best of worlds, it may never come quite within reach. Yet we must ever continue to strive for it.

With godless communism flowing across every weakly held frontier of faith, the task of moving forward to a universal understanding among men is today immeasurably more difficult. In grim necessity, the broad community of men of good will has made itself a fortress.

So long as such tyranny abounds, there can be no letting down the barriers nor laying down of weapons. But in the long interval of tension which seems to lie ahead, we still may work within the fortress for the high goals symbolized in Christ and this day.

Unhappily, even here the tension of world struggle has made men's nerves taut and their pulses pound with fear. In such a condition, friends become enemies and the mild enmities of politics flare into bitter hatreds.

Before we of the free nations can hope to dress the wounds of spirit being suffered now by millions of the enslaved, we must present to them minds that are cleansed of hatreds and hearts that are filled with kind concern for our own fellows.

We need not pretend it is easy to confront the frustrating indecision of the struggle, nor to thread our way in the most perplexing confusion known to history. But we must not therefore crumble and yield to forces of hate. In the clangor set up by our fears, we must not give away the Brotherhood of Man.

Christ is our symbol. We must make Him real. We must have faith in Him, and we must act upon that faith. If we win that victory within, then there need be no terror from the godless hordes without.

Judge Jackson Has Earned Reelection

CIRCUIT Judge Glenn W. Jackson of Gladstone will be a candidate for reelection for a six year term in the spring election, a decision that comes as no surprise.

Judge Jackson has made an excellent record in his first term as judge of the 25th judicial district. His reelection is regarded as a certainty and in all probability he will not be confronted with opposition.

The circuit is a large one, probably the largest in the entire state in terms of area, comprising the counties of Delta, Marquette, Menominee, Dickinson and Iron. The work load in the circuit is exceptionally large. But Judge Jackson has maintained a high level of accomplishment in the circuit and has conducted the office with efficiency and dignity.

He has served the five counties in the circuit exceptionally well and has amply earned the right to reelection.

The counties served by Judge Jackson of course, have cause to be happy that the judge will seek another six-year term.

One Last Political Favor

PRESIDENT Truman, who has treated the Justice Department like a nice, easy proving ground for political faithfuls being groomed for the Supreme Court, apparently was unable to resist one last gesture of that kind.

As solicitor general in the department he named one Walter J. Cummings, Jr., a 36-yearo-ld lawyer with no great legal fame. According to custom, this post should go only to eminent attorneys, for the solicitor general is the top practicing lawyer for the government. He represents the United States before the Supreme Court on the major cases involving the federal authority.

Cummings is the son of a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. He seems to have won the job, for a brief few weeks before the Republicans take over, after personal appeals to the White House by his father.

Since this is so, it is hard to draw any conclusion but that Mr. Truman handed out a political favor, allowing the young Cummings to bask for a time in the bright glory of an important government post.

Had the President been thinking of his public responsibilities, he would not have filled the vacancy from the outside at all, since it would not be fair to expect a truly eminent lawyer to serve a mere seven-week term. He would have permitted the work in the final days to be carried on by veteran government attorneys who have been carrying on since Philip Perlman resigned a few months ago.

THE BRASS IS TO BLAME
(Detroit Free Press)

A Congressional subcommittee has taken a long, hard look at the $9,000,000,000 building program authorized for our Army, Navy and Air Force.

The Congressmen didn't like what they saw. Their report criticizes the program for containing too much "plush and frills" and accuses the military of waste, extravagance and improper planning.

More shocking, the committee suggests that military brass hats capitalized on the Korean War to wheedle more money out of Congress for building programs than was necessary.

The committee report bluntly accuses the military officials responsible, for supplying "inaccurate, incomplete or misleading information" to Congress, to justify various projects.

Publicity-minded Congressmen can always grab a headline or two by accusing the brass hats of waste and extravagance.

But this indictment by the Hardy subcommittee is well documented, and based upon detailed inspection of 15 military bases in 12 states.

Now the military "brass hats," we submit, are responsible for these luxurious construction details. They approved them, and guided them through congressional channels with glib explanations about "military necessity."

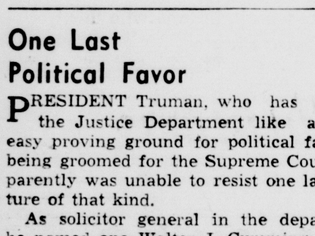
The subcommittee would perform a service by fixing individual responsibility here and inviting said officers in for an explanation.

These "brass hats" should be asked to explain the "military necessity" for the terrazo floors and marble staircases found in some new Air Force buildings. They should be asked to explain them in light of the reported ammunition shortage in Korea.

Maybe this was the sort of thing Gen. Eisenhower had in mind during the late campaign when he said, repeatedly, that military spending could be cut without endangering national security.

Running expenses are twice as hard to keep up with when you are a fast stepper.

UNCLE EF



One of the surest ways of getting something you really want for Christmas is to buy it yourself and sneak it in among the packages.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Most of the big overseas airlines are now bringing G. I.s home for Chrismas on charter flights, following this column's disclosure last week that Pan American Airways had pressured them not to permit charter flights.

Immediately following publication, attorneys for KLM, the Dutch airline, recommended that KLM could carry G. I.s on chartered planes regardless of any International Air Transport Association discouragement of charter flights. It has now delivered three planeloads of G. I.s while Air France has done the same.

Pan American Airways has denied that it pressured these lines to ban G. I. chartered flights, but here is the inside story of what happened.

About 200 G. I.s first approached Air France to take them home on chartered planes for Christmas. Cut-rate competition in chartered flights is banned by the International Air Transport Association. However, the G. I.s just didn't have enough money to pay either first-class or tourist rates, and the French government sent word to Air France to help the G. I.s in every way possible.

Air France, therefore, decided to carry the troops home by chartered plane regardless of the I. A. T. A.

This word spread to Germany where more G. I.s tried to charter planes. At this point, Pan American Airways got into the act. Other airlines say it was Pan Am's representative at Frankfurt who first phoned them reminding them of a possible $50,000 fine if they carried passengers on chartered planes. They also say Pan Am complained to the I. A. T. A.

As a result, most foreign airlines bowed to Pan Am and canceled chartered flights, leaving some G. I.s stranded. The 55 G. I.s who cabled this columnist say that the Pan Am representative called them "emotional kids." To which the G. I.s replied: "We are 55 emotional kids who still appreciate spending Christmas with our families."

Air France, however, ignored Pan Am's pressure from the first and finished one chartered flight prior to publication of the facts by this column. The day after publication, other airlines also decided to ignore Pan Am and the I. A. T. A.

Pan American Airways has done an excellent job of bringing G. I.s home for Christmas, but at tourist rates. These, however, are higher than chartered rates, and G. I.s have a hard time scraping up enough money to come home for Christmas.

MERRY-CHRISTMAS-GO-AROUND

Though this will be Harry Truman's last Christmas in the White House it will also be his first. Hitherto he has carved his turkey in Independence, Mo. . . . Newest Christmas thrill for youngsters is Santa Claus letters from the North Pole. They are mailed, courtesy of Pan American Airways, which will carry the letters (written by Mom and Dad) up to Point Barrow, Alaska, where they are postmarked and mailed back to the U. S. A. Pan American stamps the envelopes with a special North Pole stamp . . . . The post office at Santa Claus, Indiana, is doing the greatest volume of business in history . . . . Dean of Washington Santa Clauses is Percy J. Bobbitt, who each year takes two months leave without pay from the naval gun factory in Washington partly to work as Santa Claus at the Hecht Company, the rest of the time to visit sick and crippled youngsters who can't get downtown . . . . . Bobbitt reports that the chief presents youngsters want Santa to bring them this year are space helmets and space shoes, though little girls still lean toward the mother instinct and favor old-fashioned dolls. Whispered one 4-year-old to Santa Bobbitt: "Please bring me a baby brother and bring mother the same thing." . . . . Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, wary of corruption charges, has warned Commerce Department employees against taking any gifts from outsiders—not even cigarettes and candy.

EISENHOWER AND CONGRESS

General Eisenhower will junk the Truman plan of making frequent personal appearances before Congress, will appear there personally only once each session—to deliver the "state of the union" message.

This was made known to the three top Republican congressmen who called on Ike recently—Speaker-to-be Joe Martin, Majority Leader Charlie Halleck of Indiana, and GOP whip Les Arends of Illinois.

Eisenhower strongly intimated, without alluding directly to President Truman, that there had been too much promenading up to Capitol Hill by the chief executive on matters that easily could be handled by written messages.

Explaining that he planned to go to Congress only once a year, the President-eltct added: "I plan to stick to that schedule unless some emergency arises that makes it necessary for me to address Congress in person."

On the other hand, Ike assured his congressional callers, "My door will always be open" to any member of Congress "who has a problem he wants to discuss with me."

Spy Or Dupe?

Noel Field, Silent Witness At Prague Purge, Is Mystery Man

By LEON DENNEN

PARIS —(NEA)— Noel Field, former U. S. State Department employe charged with "pro-Western espionage" at the Prague trial of top Czech Reds, was described as "hundred per cent Communist" by Louis Dolivet in an exclusive interview with NEA Service.

"Not only was Field a Communist but he was also for many years a trusted agent of Soviet intelligence," Dolivet said.

Louis Dolivet has long been a controversial figure in the U. S. and Europe. He spent the war years in the U. S. where he edited the "United Nations World" and was subsequently a United Nations official and worked closely with Trygve Lie, UN General Secretary. He was married to socialite Beatrice Whitney Straight.

In May, 1950, Rep. Edward H. Jenison, Rep., Ill., described Dolivet as "a very dangerous Stalinist agent and a member of the international Communist apparatus." This Dolivet vigorously denies.

• • •

However, he told NEA that he knew Noel Field intimately. He also had first-hand knowledge of the activities of Vladimir Clementis, former Czech foreign minister, and Andre Simone, former editor of the Czech Rude Pravo.

Both men, although life-long Communists, have been executed after trial as "Trotskyist-Zionist-Anglo-American agents," ostensibly recruited by Field.

Dolivet, who has since been barred from the U. S. (he was even denied a visa to attend the funeral of his seven-year-old son who died recently) is now editor of "Fighting Democracy," a magazine published in Paris and described as "pro-Western and anti-totalitarian."

Another editor of the publication is Leon Jouhaux, 1951 Nobel Peace Prize winner and head of the French anti-Communist trade union federation.

• • •

Noel Field, whose arrest behind the Iron Curtain and subsequent role as "silent witness" in the Czech purge trial was first revealed by NEA in March, 1950, was dubbed a "Soviet agent" at the trial of Alger Hiss in New York. But he was called an "American spy" at the Communists' trial of the purged Hungarian Red, Laszlo Rajk.

Field was arrested in Czechoslovakia in 1949. Also missing are hs wife, Hertha, their adopted daughter, and his brother, Hermann, who is also charged with "pro-Western" espionage activities.

Despite the charges at the Prague trial, it has since been established that Field was in fact a secret agent of Soviet intelligence, with headquarters in Switzerland before and during World War II.

"As head of an American relief organization during the war, Field's primary activity was to help Communist refugees from Germany and Communist inmates of Nazi concentration camps," Dolivet said.

• • •

There was hardly a Communist refugee in Europe immediately following the seizure of power by the Nazis in Germany and during the entire war period who was not in contact with Field and did not depend on his aind, he said.

"Field has therefore been chosen by the Russian M.V.D. as the ideal man to incriminate Communists who, despite their blind allegiance to Moscow, probably resent Russia's brutal plunder of their country."

Dolivet was equally emphatic in his description of Clementis, former Czech foreign minister who has been executed, as a "die-hard Stalinist."

As chief of the Czechoslovak delegation at the UN, Clementis always represented the most uncompromising pro-Soviet view, Dolivet said. "Where Russia's interests were concerned he would not listen to any reasonable argument."

• • •

One member of Clementis' UN staff was—and probably still is—"the eyes and ears of the Soviet Politburo whose chief function was to transmit Soviet instructions to the UN diplomats of the Soviet bloc."

The case of Simone was seen by Dolivet as further proof that the Kremlin distrusts all Reds who may once have lived in Western nations and maintained friendly relations with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Simone, who also has been known as Breda and Otto Katz was Moscow's chief agent in Mexico during the war. He was generally rated one of Russia's most brutal and unscrupulous hirelings. Simone had wide connections with the movie colony in Hollywood and was "largely responsible for the bolshevzation of Hollywood."

By emphasizing the anti-Jewish aspect of the Prague trial, the Russians hope to gain favor with the Arab world where Soviet agents are now engaged in intensive activity, Dolivet said.

Secret Silver 'Radome' On Guard In Northwest

(NEA) Newsfeatures

NEAH BAY, Wash.—Up on a mountain peak overlooking this northwestern corner of the United States sits a million-dollar giant eye which keeps a sweeping watch for danger from the north Pacific Ocean.

More than 200 men of the 758th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron see to it that The Big Eye keeps awake around the clock, constantly on the alert for possible enemy aircraft.

The Big Eye is 78 miles from Port Angeles, Wash., nearest U. S. Coast Guard station, and just south of Vancouver, B. C., Island, where the Strait of Juan De Fuca enters the Pacific. It is one of the latest radar mechanisms developed, responsible for alerting Northwest air-defense pilots at the slightest hint of danger from the sky.

The Big Eye is inside a silver 'Radome." It looks exactly like a small observatory from the outside. Its pressurized insides are secret.

Any planes not reported by military or civil officials to Commanding Officer Maj. Albert Sporer's men are subject to immediate investigation by U. S. Air Force jet interceptors based nearby. The men consider their small base "one of the finest" in the Air Force, says that officer from Des Moines, Ia.

The men compete to make themselves keener at sighting aircraft. They're tucked away from most signs of civilization with only The Big Eye to make them realize that things may not be so peaceful in other parts of the globe.

It's a lonely assignment, says Maj. Sporer, but the men of the 758th are proud of their job.

Education is a kind of continuing dialogue, and a dialogue assumes . . . different points of view . . . You cannot assume that you are going to have everybody thinking the same way; it would be very boring.—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins to congressional investigators.

MERRY CHRISTMAS—One of the features of the Christmas season is the Christmas program, presented in schools and in churches.

They are as much of a tradition as Santa Claus and a tree, and both will be found in any well-conducted program. From one Christmas to the next the boys and girls present programs of varying degrees of excellence, ranging from poor to fair.

But to the doting parents they are all excellent, which is as it should be. There is nothing quite so satisfying to parental ego as watching offspring perform on the stage.

The children, however, view this command performance with anything but enthusiasm. They would prefer skating or just sitting home reading a good comic book or listening to Hopalong Cassidy shoot justice into the Wild West.

• • •

THE NERVOUS TYPES—The strain on childish nerves is terrific when they hit the spotlight of the Christmas program. Often this leads to unintentionally amusing situations.

There was, for example, the little girl who stood in the middle of the front row on the stage and waited her turn to speak. Nervously she began fingering the hem of her skirt.

The fingering developed into rolling movements that slowly shortened the garment until it was little more than a belt around her middle. Fortunately she had on undergarments of modest proportions and suitably frilly for the holiday season.

When it came her turn to speak she dropped the last word and the skirt simultaneously, ending the suspense that had gripped her parents in consternation from the moment their daughter began rolling her own.

• • •

FAULTY MEMORY—One plump little boy of pre-school age, making his first appearance on any stage, brought down the house by being completely honest about his disinclination to appear.

Things went well for him as long as his memory kept in the groove. He spoke his piece like a little man—up to a certain point. Then he forgot.

A glazed and suffering look appeared in his eyes. He started over again and forgot at the same point as before. Again he tried. It was no use. He tried again—and again.

Finally in desperation (he was holding up the program) the teacher tried to lead him off stage. He resisted, then finally gave up with a resounding wail:

"You made me learn it!" he yelled. "I didn't want to! Now you gotta hear it!"

• • •

THE PROMPTERS—Best method of encouraging youngsters to recite is to give them the moral assistance of a group of their fellows.

In one Christmas program we attended a few years ago an officious little girl acted as uninvited prompter to the boy next to her. Every time it was his turn to speak she gave him a poke in the ribs with her elbow and looked at him accusingly.

He took this for a time then became angry. When it came his turn he spoke indignantly:

"So the Shepherds watched—you stop poking me, Clarice—over their their flocks—or I'll hit you so hard—and heard the Angel voices—you'll be eating your own teeth—rejoicing on high!"

• • •

SPIRIT OF JOY—These and other incidents enliven every Christmas program in which children are forced to appear.

The young victims of regimentation react like human beings to the compulsion of resenting what they do not like. This is understandable, since it is an emotion shared by their parents.

But it well worth the time and effort for it teaches youngsters the social graces, causes them to be uncomfortable in public, and satisfies parental ego. These are factors they must contend with for years to come. They might as well face the necessity early in life.

Bluish Spots on Skin Call for Careful Search for Purpura

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D. — Written for NEA Service

An interesting subject is brought up by D. W. T., who writes: "Please tell me what causes purpura. Is there a cure for this disease?"

First, for the benefit of those readers who have never heard of purpura, this is a condition in which purple patches, usually small, appear on the skin or mucous membranes, resulting from leakage of blood into these areas. It is similar, therefore, to an ordinary bruise and indeed in the presence of purpura, black and blue bruises are likely to appear much more readily.

There are many complicated aspects of purpura: it can develop as a result of a large number of infections, including measles, meningitis, or pneumonia; it can follow administration of drugs in those who are sensitive to certain of them. In many cases it is related to malfunctioning of the spleen. In some the cause cannot be discovered at all.

In a more general way, it may be related to changes in the capillary blood vessels which allow the blood to sweep through more easily than usual, or to changes in the various parts of the blood itself.

Whenever purpura occurs a number of tests must be taken to find out what kind of purpura is present, what treatment offers the best chances of improvement, and what the outlook is for recovery.

If the condition, for example, is the result of an infection which is likely to improve, little may need to be done; if it is the result of taking some drug, perhaps discontinuing the drug alone will be enough.

On the other hand, if it is the kind of purpura resulting from malfunctioning of the spleen, serious consideration will have to be given to removing that organ. In fact, in the splenic kind of purpura removing all of the spleen may be the answer.

REMOVAL DOES NO HARM

It is a curious fact that the spleen, which lies in the abdominal cavity, and the functions of which are not yet fully understood, can be removed not only without harmful effects, but also with great benefit in a few conditions. Purpura is sometimes one of them.

Although most readers of this column will fortunately never have occasion to become personally concerned about purpura, they should realize that the development of these bluish spots in the mucous membrane or on the skin are signs of something which should involve immediate and careful investigation.

Barn-Dried Hay Equal To Silage

Upper Peninsula dairy farmers can barn-dry or crop-silage their hay next summer, rain or shine, with about the same winter feeding results, Michigan State College farm crops and dairy surveys show.

Tests run by personnel of the MSC Upper Peninsula Experiment Station at Chatham, Marquette county, show dairy cows fed on barn-dried hay turn in about the same milk production as those fed hay silage. Little difference was indicated in butterfat test or body weight of the animals.

Time Of Harvest Important

In early tests, in 1949, A. R. Wolcott and W. B. Lutz of the U. P. Experiment Station showed that June-harvested hay crop silage gave better milk production than hay harvested the first of August and barn-dried hay cut the middle of July. Time of harvest undoubtedly influenced the results.

The newer tests compare milk production on barn-cured hay and hay crop silage cut at the same time. The report comes from Charles J. Little, dairyman, and Arthur R. Wolcott, agronomist. Three groups of Holstein cows were fed all-roughage rations, the control group getting only barn-dried hay. The second group was fed hay, silage and hay again while group three received silage, hay and then silage.

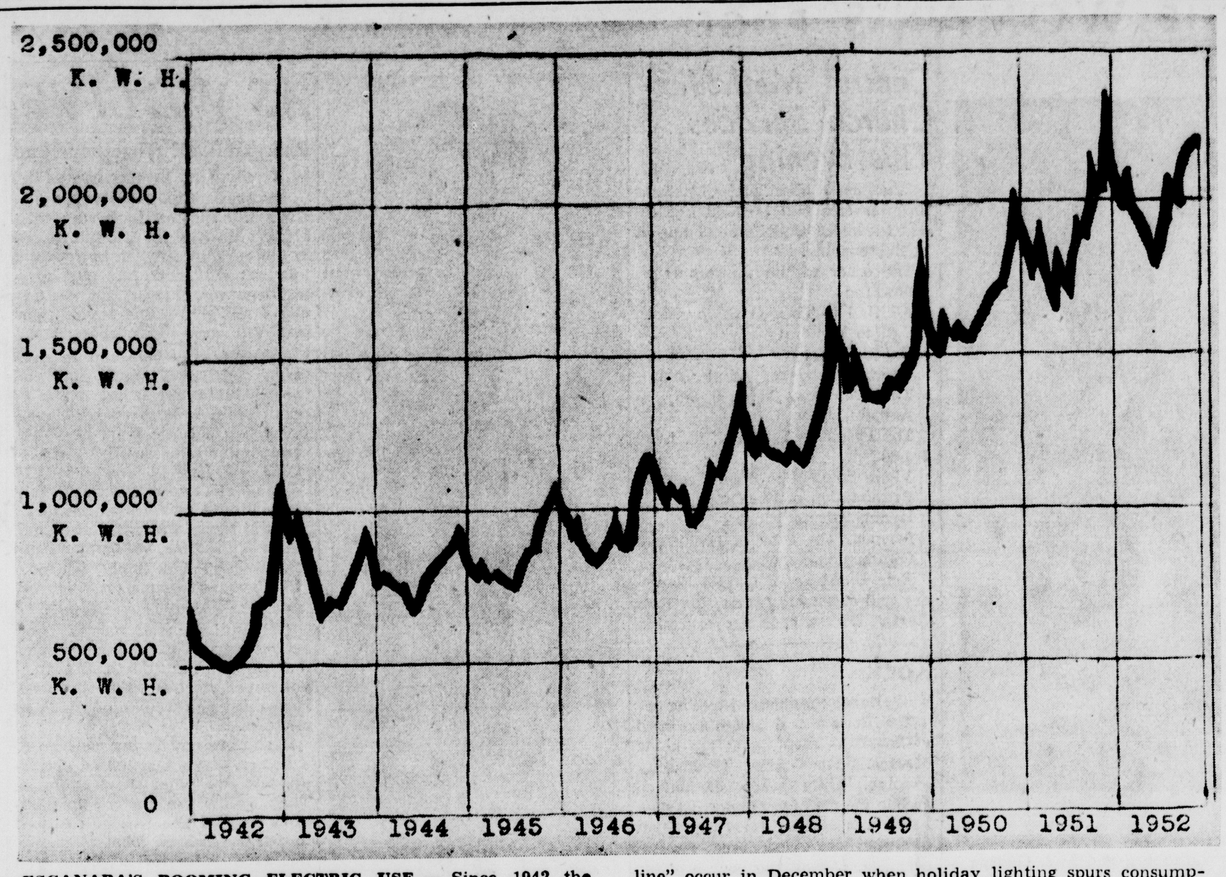
Two narrow 15-acre strips were selected in an 80-acre field so that the major variations in stand and botanical hay composition were included. The composition was 16.5 per cent alfalfa, 4.5 per cent alsike, 11.8 per cent red clover, 31.4 per cent quackgrass, 18.8 per cent timothy, 12.5 per cent bromegrass and 4.5 per cent weeds. Silage was cut June 27, 28 and 29 with a mower-windrower, picked up and foraged-chopped with a one-fourth inch cut. It was weighed and 50 pounds of molasses added per ton. The usual rains interferred and it took three days to fill the silo.

Cured To Brittleness

Hay for barn-curing was cut July 5, 6 and 7 with a composite of 74.7 per cent moisture, was allowed to wilt in the swath before windrowing and to cure in the windrow until the outside leaves had a slight brittleness. The hay was cut to four-inch lengths and blown into the haymow with an average moisture content of 31.7 per cent.

Forced air and heat dried the hay to safe moisture level. High humidity made it necessary to operate the blower intermittently to prevent heating. On days when humidity was down, the blower operated continuously during the day and an hour in the evening to eliminate heating, but not at night.

The Holstein test cows were fed on all-hay ration for 30 to 60 days before the tests to deplete any reserves; a decline and leveling-off of milk production indicated the depletion. No grain was fed and the tests started with daily roughage being weighed and fed morning and night.



ESCANABA'S BOOMING ELECTRIC USE — Since 1942 the amount of power consumed in the city of Escanaba has nearly tripled. The above graph shows the kilowatt hours of electricity purchased for the past decade. The annual peaks in the "use line" occur in December when holiday lighting spurs consumption of electricity. The spurt in 1942-43 represents additional electric power supplied by the city in the construction of the wartime federal ore docks. (Daily Press Photo)

Escanaba Uses Eight Times More Electricity Now Than Was Consumed 30 Years Ago

Industries, stores and homes in Escanaba today are using nearly eight times as much electric power as they did 30 years ago.

The electric consumption increase is revealed in statistics that show a gradual and ever-increasing upward trend—and what the future holds no one is yet prepared to predict.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that an additional supply of electricity will be required to meet the needs of the power - hungry community.

Face Power Shortage

For the Mead Corporation, parent concern of Upper Michigan Power & Light Company, the city's present supplier, has warned that it does not want the city as a power customer after the present contract expires in 1958.

The Mead corporation has publicly advised Escanaba, Gladstone and the Alger Delta Cooperative Electric Association, its three customers to whom it sells power wholesale, to start looking elsewhere for electricity. The Mead Corporation wants to expand its Escanaba Paper Company and will have use for all of the power now being generated.

The phenomenal increase in electric consumption in Escanaba is indicated in figures supplied by the city's electric department showing the amount of kilowatt hours of power purchased annually.

Rises Year By Year

Back in the fiscal year of 1923-24 the city purchased a total of 2,830,010 KWH of electric power from Upper Michigan Power & Light Company and distributed it to its customers in Escanaba.

For the fiscal year 1951-52 the city's total KWH consumption totaled 21,740,523 — nearly eight times more than was used some 30 years ago.

The growth in consumption has been slow, moving upward year by year. The total reached over 3 million KWH in the 1920's, hit 4 million KWH in 1930 and by 1940 had climbed to over 6 million.

Since 1942 (ten years ago) the load has climbed more rapidly than any time in the city's history. Electric use has tripled in the past 10 years in the city, beginning with 7,134,801 KWH consumed in 1940-41 and mounting to 21,740,523 KWH used in the city in 1951-52.

Industrial Expansion

The largest upward step in history was taken within the past year. For the fiscal year 1950-51 the city counsel consumed 18,810,000 KWH of electric power—and climbed by nearly 3 million KWH to reach the 1951-52 fiscal year total of 21,740,523.

Harvey Germanson, acting superintendent of the Escanaba electric department, points out that most of the increase within the past year resulted from demands for power in connection with industrial expansion.

Percentage increases in consumption show that industrial use of electric power went up 28 per cent, residential climbed 10.7 per cent, and commercial use increased by 6.6 per cent.

"One thing is certain, if electric power supply is available for Escanaba in sufficient capacity the load will continue to rise," Germanson said. "More industrial expansion is expected, and the only question is whether the supply will be able to meet the demand."

People Cooperate

Mead Corporation, the electric supplier for this area, has advised the city of Escanaba that some curtailment of non-essential electric use will be required to assure uninterrupted power for the essential industrial uses.

To this end the city has cooperated in calling upon Escanaba residents to avoid outdoor lighting displays during the holidays, and the decorative lighting on Ludington Street has been restricted in use this year.

An appeal was also made to customers to avoid, so far as possible, the use of electricity during the peak demand periods for power. These peaks, should they go too high, would temporarily deprive essential industries of the power they need to maintain operations.

That the people are aware of the problem and are cooperating in reducing non-essential electric uses and avoiding the peak demand periods is indicated in power consumption figures this month, Germanson said.

The Future Need

It now appears the city will not exceed last year's December peak, when consumption approached the 2,500,000 KWH mark.

These are but temporary measures, however, to balance the power load in an effort to distribute the supply more evenly throughout the day and the month so that no essential use will be curtailed.

That the future holds a still greater demand is accepted as certain. Industrial expansion, additional household use (including the imminent possibility of thousands of TV sets), and expanded commercial need will come as time passes.

Solution Is Sought

Television receiving sets use a considerable amount of electric power, Germanson pointed out. It has been the experience in other communities that when TV came in electric consumption went up 15 to 25 per cent.

Solution of the electric supply problem is now under consideration by the cities of Escanaba, Gladstone and the Alger-Delta Electric Cooperative Association. All are in the same power-short predicament because of the limited generating capacity of their supplier.

The solution cannot be too long delayed or the entire Delta county area will enter a period of electric curtailment rather than expansion.

Fluette Family Is Burned Out

The Alex Fluette residence at Nahma Junction was completely destroyed by fire yesterday morning, the family losing all of their personal belongings, clothes, furniture and even Christmas gifts in the fire.

The blaze was discovered by Richard Sargent about 10:30 a.m. Neighbors helped to remove a truck from the area of the fire but nothing in the home could be saved.

The Red Cross has issued an appeal for assistance.

There are three children in addition to the parents. There are two boys, 12 and 7, and a girl, 8. All are large for their ages, however, anyone with clothing to offer, furniture, food or other family needs are asked to notify the Red Cross.

Pickford Bank Claims Settled

SAULT STE. MARIE—A petition for settlement of claims against the partners of the defunct Bank of Pickford was approved Monday in Chippewa County Circuit Court by Judge Herbert W. Runnels.

The settlement is for $22,000, plus waivers on deposits totaling $23,511.44, from the alleged partners of the bank.

Harold McGauley, receiver, said a 20 per cent dividend will be paid when the funds made available through the petition action are received. Depositors have already received 30 per cent, in two dividends, one of 10 per cent and the other of 20 per cent.

Before granting the petition, Judge Runnels said he thought it a mighty good thing for the depositors. It strikes me as a good, fair proposition," the judge said.

Had the claims against the partners been carried through the courts, he said, the litigation might have cost $40,000 to $50,000.

The petition provides for release from liability of all the partners, but does not include any release from the Ford Becom estate, or from his widow.

McGauley and three members of the depositors' committee all testified Monday that they believed the proposed settlement to be fair and in the best interests of all the depositors.

Pull Yourself Together And Grow Up, Young Lady!

By Elizabeth B. Hurlock, Ph.D.

When a person feels sorry for himself and allows himself to go to pieces, that is when he needs a jolt that will make him pull himself together. I trust that the advice I am giving this young woman will serve that purpose:

(Q) "I am single and in my early thirties. I would like to get married but I just can't. I can't seem to keep up with any activities because I am nervous and forget things easily. I am a little careless in everything I do and don't seem to care. I feel very stupid in a crowd and cry a lot at home. I just stay at home most of the time. My mother and father can't do a thing with me. Can you advise me on what to do?"

(A) Pull yourself together and act your age. You are a grown woman now, not a little girl. As such, you must start to take the responsibilities a woman of your age assumes.

If you are not feeling well, go to a doctor, have a complete checkup, and see what the trouble is. Then follow the doctor's instructions so that you will be restored to normal health. That is essential as a basis for anything you may want to do.

At home, stop behaving like a spoiled child. It is absurd for you to cry, even if you are not well. You are old enough to be taking some of the burdens off your parents shoulders instead of adding to them.

Then go out in your community and do something. If it is not financially necessary for you to work, make some contribution to community affairs. You can always volunteer your services to the hospital, church, or other community organizations which badly need help.

As for marriage, you cannot expect any man to want you unless you are willing to act your age. What man wants a wife who cries around the house and who is careless about her appearance and everything she does? When a man marries, he expects his wife to share the burdens of their life together, not add to his. Until you can pull yourself together and behave like a mature woman you should not expect any man to look twice at you.

Dr. Hurlock will help you with your family problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

If you want to pure fruits and vegetables use a sieve or a food mill rather than a strainer. A sieve has its wire mesh supported by crosswires and so is strong enough to stand having food forced through it; a strainer is not reinforced in this way and if foods are forced through it, the wire mesh is likely to pull away from the frame.

We wish you Merry Christmas
And Happy New Year too.
We appreciate the business,
That we received from you.

Congress Expected To Scan Communist Atrocities In Korea

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Flood (D-Pa) declared Tuesday there was "no doubt whatsoever" that the incoming 83rd Congress will approve an investigation of alleged Communist atrocities in Korea.

Flood, a member of a special House committee which has been investigating the Katyn Forest massacre of World War II, said a bill authorizing such an inquiry probably would be introduced immediately in the new Congress convening Jan. 3.

Mass Murders Similar

Flood's statement followed the final report of the Katyn committee, which found a "striking similarity" between the massacre of 15,000 polish officers early in World War II and reported Communist atrocities against U. N. troops in Korea.

Flood called the mass murders in the Katyn Forest near Smolensk, Russia, some time after 1940 a "blueprint" for Communist plans to liquidate their enemies on a wholesale scale.

The House committee recommended that the next Congress undertake such an investigation, stating in its report:

"Communist tactics being used in Korea are identical to those followed at Katyn."

Guilt On Russia

There was no indication, however, that the committee had evidence of new or recent mistreatment of U. N. troops or of incidents not reported a year or more ago in the Korea conflict.

The U. N. Command then put the number of atrocities in Korea at about 8,000.

The committee's report, coming after more than a year's inquiry into the Katyn Forest murders, laid the guilt on Soviet Russia and recommended that the USSR be arraigned before the World Court by the U. N. General Assembly.

Economists Of Nation Crawl Out On Limb

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the time of year the economists crawl out on a limb—both those hired by corporations and those hired by government and the universities.

This year most of them have chosen an optimistic limb and predict a pleasant year ahead for their bosses and the public. There are some dissenters, however.

A group of them held a round-table discussion under the sponsorship of the National Industrial Conference Board. Their views, on average, were summed up by the board's chief economist, Martin B. Gainsburgh, as follows:

"A trend toward lower prices in 1953, including not only wholesale commodity prices, but also a lower Consumer Price Index the cost of living index, but with a rise in the wage pattern in 1953 of two per cent or probably three per cent."

If the economists are right, that will be fine for many Americans—more pay and lower prices.

For the businessman, however—the economists added—it would mean "even narrower profit margins in 1953 than the thin margins already prevailing."

And the group, as a whole, looked for the Gross National Product—the sum of all goods and service produced—to rise some two or three per cent next year.

Not all of them went along with the majority, however. Dr. Jule Backman of New York University believes: "Some time in 1953 we will see the start of a recession which will be of a magnitude of about 10 per cent and it will go on through 1954."

Thompson

THOMPSON—Rev. G. A. Herbert, pastor of Zion Lutheran church at Manistique, conducted services at the Thompson school Sunday, preceding the Sunday School program given under direction of Mrs. John Stoor, superintendent. A large crowd attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kaiser are the parents of a daughter born Friday at Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital in Manistique. She is the second child and the first daughter in the family.

George Grimms was guest of honor at a farewell party given by fellow workers at the Northwoods Manufacturing plant, where he is superintendent. He is retiring from work there to operate a store he recently purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hugo.

President Of Saar

SAARBRUECKEN, The Saar (AP)—The Saar's new Parliament re-elected Johannes Hoffman minister president of the tiny autonomous state by a vote of 45 to four. The only opposition came from the four Communist deputies.

In 1946 the marriage rate in the United States was 16.4 per 1,000.

Ashes Of Japanese War Leaders Saved Secretly For Shrine

TOKYO (AP) — Gen. Hideki Tojo and six other major Japanese war criminals died on the gallows four years ago today. Their bodies were cremated and the ashes disposed of secretly by order of occupation authorities.

The Tokyo magazine King claims after six months investigation it has uncovered the full story of what happened to the executed war leaders and how their ashes were partly retrieved from a crematorium at Yokohama.

The magazine said the ashes of Tojo and his colleagues were ordered scattered over the Pacific, apparently to prevent enshrinement later by the Japanese people.

Condemned Not Upset

Although these orders were carried out, the operators of the Kuboyama Crematorium at Yokohama eluded supervising military police and picked up a residue of ashes in the furnaces. These were buried in Yokohama in an unmarked grave. A portion of the ashes were reburied openly in Nagano, Central Japan, after the country regained independence last April.

Dr. Shinsho Hanayama, Buddhist chaplain and the only Japanese who saw the seven war criminals on the day of execution, described the last rites to the magazine.

The condemned were notified of the execution 48 hours before it took place.

"None of them appeared upset," said Hanayama. "Tojo, for instance, nodded with a smile, saying 'Okay, okay' in English."

Tojo and the others were taken to a buddhist altar in Sugamo Prison. They were all well-groomed, Hanayama said. The only civilian, prewar Prime Minister Koki Hirota, used cosmetics for the first time in many days in the prison.

Three Banzais

Their hands were handcuffed and tied to their thighs with strong leather belts, to prevent any last moment attempt at suicide.

The seven were calm and steady to the end, according to the priest. The chaplain served them a last cup of wine and water.

Tojo and the others shouted: "Long live the Emperor, long live the Japanese Empire." The banzais rang out three times.

Then they turned to nearly 30 American guards, saying, "Thank you for taking care of us," the magazine King said. Some of the Americans shook hands with them.

The seven men climbed the 13 steps to the gallows, chanting: "Holy Buddha the merciful." Official representatives of the U. S., Britain, China and the Soviet Union watched them.

Miyoshi Tobita, chief of the Kuboyama Crematorium, told the magazine how he disposed of the bodies the same day.

Tobita said he was alerted when a U. S. newspaperman banged on his door at 5 a.m. and said, 'I have followed a truck from Sugamo Prison but lost track of it near here. It must be bound for your crematorium.'

Tobita took the newsman to the crematorium. Two and a half hours later a hooded truck arrived, guarded by about 12 fully armed U. S. military police led by a lieutenant colonel. The newsman and other Japanese were sent away. Seven coffins were unloaded from the truck.

Memorial Planned

The seven were entered on the crematorium books as "unnamed Americans." But Tobita said, "We could tell they were Japanese after we carried the coffins."

Tobita claimed he and his assistants peered into the furnaces and were able to identify the dead, the magazine said.

Tobita said he overheard the U. S. commander "giving hell" to a soldier who muttered, "Number one Tojo," while handing a casket to another soldier.

King quoted an unidentified but "most reliable" source as saying the ashes taken by the Allied authorities were later thrown into the sea.

Two tombs have been erected for Tojo and his associates, but thus far no Japanese have started calling them "gods."

The newspaper Asahi said a memorial for the executed would be erected in the form of a sculptured Buddha. It will be financed by proceeds from collected letters and manuscripts of those executed.

GOP Will Pass Out 2,000 Jobs

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — (CQ) — The new Republican Congress and President will control distribution of about 2,000 patronage jobs paying approximately $3,000 to $25,000 a year each.

Some of these jobs will be filled by appointments by Democratic Congressmen, but the number of minority party selections will be decided by Republicans—acting in line with established procedure.

The 2,000 figure includes only federal jobs which are affected by a change in party control of Congress and the Presidency. If jobs on office staffs of Congressmen and similar posts were included the total would be increased by several thousand.

When President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower and the new Congress have taken office, it will be the first time since the early years of the Presidency of Herbert Hoover that the GOP has controlled both houses of Congress and the Presidency. Consequently, the patronage job turnover will be the biggest in more than 20 years.

About 900 to 1,000 of the jobs are in the executive branch of the government. They are filled by Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation.

Almost 300 more patronage jobs to be filled in January are distributed throughout the U. S. They are U. S. attorneys, marshals, customs officials and postmasters. All are appointed by the President and require Senate approval. The President makes each appointment with the advice of the Senators of his party from the state involved. In the case of postmasters, the Representative from the district concerned usually is consulted.

The higher paying jobs generally are in the eecutive departments. Most are filled by direct Presidential appointment and subsequent Senate confirmation. Most of the lower paying jobs are directly controlled by Congress.

Show Pony Rescued In Six-Foot Grave

BROADSTAIRS, England (AP) — Minette found herself a hole in the ground that she seemed to prefer to her regular habitat as a show pony.

Just how she got there was a mystery, but she was found standing placidly in the quiet of an unoccupied—save for herself—six-foot grave that had been newly dug in St. Peters Cemetery.

The gravedigger couldn't get her to budge and called the fire brigade. They came equipped with ropes, tackle and pulley blocks—but one fireman was ingenious. Noting that Minette's flanks were close against the grave walls, he suggested they shovel earth into the pit.

As the dirt fell around her, Minette angrily stamped her hoofs, pounding the earth down and slowly building up the level of the grave floor. Soon she was up to ground level again, and the gravedigger faced the task of shoveling all the dirt out again.

One Man's Christmas Tree Attracts 10,000 Strangers

By ANN BARTOS RUSHTON
NEA Special Correspondent

DENVER, Colo. (NEA) — A Christmas "open house" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gano Senter of Denver is like other Christmas "open houses" in only one respect.

People come in for short visits, but they're not just friends and relatives. There have been 10,000 of them each Yule season for the past 20 years. Usually they're complete strangers. And they don't come to see the Senters.

They cross the Senter threshold to see what well may be the world's most dazzling private Christmas tree. It cost a small fortune, is exhibited with showmanship and never fails to enthrall spectators.

The Senter Christmas tree is about 10 small trees and 50 to 75 extra limbs, all firmly put together by a hired carpenter. The height of the tree—11 feet—is limited by the height of the Senter living room.

• • •

The tree has to be super-strong to suport 4000 ornaments and 700 colored lights that hang on it. The whole works weights about 700 pounds.

Mrs. Senter is sole tree-trimmer. The job takes her one week, sometimes 14 to 16 hours a day. When it is is finished hardly a needle is visible, only lights and a solid mass of glittering, priceless, intricate ornaments.

Public showings begin on Christmas Day at dusk when the Senters turn on 1000 colored lights that outline the wrought-iron fence outside their home. The tree stays up until Jan. 3.

People waiting on sidewalks and in parked cars begin to file through the Senter portals in groups of 40. They are guided in a specific indoor traffic pattern.

The Senters estimate they've paid out at least $10,000 for tree bric-a-brac, which includes a silver lame cloth under it and a 2(piece miniature village that flanks it. Many decorations are gifts of well-wishers.

While guests gaze at the tree in the living room, an organ in the basement plays Christmas carols, birds twitter (it is really a French music box) and a revolving wheel casts changing colors upon the spectacle.

Senter stands by to show special ornaments like the tiny harp whose strings are minute glass vials of perfume, giant Swedish snowflakes flecked with colored stones, Moses-in-the-bullrushes, a miniature organ that plays.

After 15 minutes the house lights dim, the show is over, and another group is ushered in.

• • •

The Senters cater to children. Most of their private showings are for orphans, Scout groups, and crippled youngsters and are followed by hilarious parties in the Senter rumpus room.

Mrs. Senter takes care to hang children's favorite ornaments in approximately the same spots each year.

Once a little boy cried, "Where's the littlest angel, he was right here last year!"

Senter, who sepnds a great deal of time watching his wife trim the tree just to be able to cope with such emergencies, comforted the lad by finding the favored ornament a couple of branches away.

The front row is generally reserved for youngsters. One father discovered he was minus a son after his group had made its exit to the street. After a frantic search in the cold night outdoors, the lad was found squatted in kiddies' row. He'd been there all the while, seeing the show for the third time.

• • •

"We are happy to see others happy," the Senters simply offer as their motive, although they confess the crowds sometimes tire them to the point where they "have been tempted to leave immediately for a foreign country." But each year they renew the project with vim, vigor and ornaments surpassing those of the year before.

They do not solicit visitors. Advertising is solely word-of-mouth of others, and the tree has never been publicized outside Colorado yet spectators come from all sections of the world.

Two years ago a group of maharajas from India were in Colorado to study engineering projects and dropped in to see the tree. The Senters received in the mail weeks later some intricate hand-carved ivory ornaments, gifts of princes whom their project had pleased.

LITTLE VISITOR hunts for her favovrite ornament on the Senter family tree in Denver, where 10,000 strangers turn up every Yuletide to trek through the Senters' living room.

Man Plays Possum To Outwit Grizzly

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—Max E. Harris played possum and escaped death in the powerful paws of a grizzly bear with a head "as big as a washtub."

Harris was attacked while hunting on a wilderness trail. The large grizzly, often considered the most ferocious of bears, lunged at Harris before he could shoot. The bear clawed Harris' scalp and right hand, and chewed his shoulders. Harris went limp. The bear dropped him and ambled away.

The wounded man managed to fire his rifle and attract companions. A helicopter later picked Harris from the woods and flew him to a local hospital where he is on the mend.

City May Charge Unpaid Water Bills Of Renters Against Property Owners

Delinquent water bills owed to the city by renters may become a charge against the real estate in which rented quarters are located, it was pointed out at a regular meeting of the Manistique City Council Monday night.

Portions of the municipal water ordinance, including this provision, were read and explained to councilmen by William Hood, city attorney, who also said that the new city water bond ordinance contains a similar provision.

In the event a renter fails to pay a delinquent water bill, the amount due may be included in the regular tax bill against the property involved, it was indicated.

The question was raised by William Dehut, Range St., who appeared at the council session to protest a delinquent bill of $17, owed by one of his former renters, which had been presented to him for payment.

Given No Prior Notice

Because the bill has been due approximately a year and a half, Dehut challenged the justice of the recent request for payment after the lapse of so much time. "The house occupied by this renter was torn down 18 months ago", Dehut said. "Had I been informed at the time that there was an unpaid water bill I could have collected the money from the renter.

"This person now lives on the West Coast and I don't even know his address. Had I known about the bill even two months ago", he said, "I could have obtained the money because he was back in Manistique driving a new car. It seems unfair to ask me to pay this bill after 18 months when I never was given prior notice of it and have now lost all opportunity to collect it from the renter", he said.

Relief Clients Discussed

While council members took no formal action, they expressed agreement with Dehut's statement that he should have been given prior notice of the delinquent account. The city attorney was instructed to obtain the address of the renter involved, if possible, and endeavor to make collection, even going to the extent of placing the account with an accredited collection agency.

Council members also informally agreed that landlords should be notified immediately when the water account of a renter becomes delinquent.

Councilmen also discussed delinquent water accounts of relief clients who, it was reported, are provided funds to pay water bills but sometimes let them lapse.

Inland Christmas Decoration Rated One Of City's Best

One of the most distinctive Christmas season decorations in Manistique is the animated Santa Claus and reindeer atop the office of the Inland Lime and Stone Company, in the opinion of many residents.

With sleighbells tinkling and a loudspeaker filling the air with Christmas carols, the Inland holiday decoration conveys a realistic impression of St. Nicholas and his deer-drawn cutter passing over the roof tops.

Dozens of cars have parked nightly in the office parking lot to observe the scene and hear the soft melodies of the carols.

Blooming Dandelion Proves This Is Banana Belt, Heltman Says

Fred D. Heltman, secretary of the Top O Lake Michigan Chamber of Commerce, reported yesterday afternoon he has bonafide evidence that Manistique is in the northern "banana belt".

Walking across the lawn of the chamber office building yesterday he picked a dandelion in full golden bloom. Other residents during the past week have reported dandelions back in bloom again.

"We've been telling people for years that this area has the finest summer climate in the world. We forget to tell them, however, that our fall and winter climate also is outstanding", Heltman said.

Mayor Naming Study Group

A special committee to study the advisability of adopting a smoke ordinance in Manistique will be completed with the appointment of one additional member, it was reported at a regular meeting of the City Council Monday night by Vernon C. Linderoth, mayor.

The committee, to be composed of two city representatives and three other citizens, was authorized at a council session Dec. 8.

Mayor Linderoth reported that Alex Creighton and H. Keith Bundy had been named to serve on the group, along with the mayor and City Attorney William Hood. A fifth member, he indicated, would be selected later from the Manistique Women's Club.

Purpose of the committee is to ascertain if a smoke ordinance is needed in Manistique and if the public desires such an ordinance.

The committee is to present its findings and recommendations to the council at a later meeting.

Purchase of a two-way radio was discussed following a report by City Manager H. W. Heideman that the city had been assigned a license to operate such a radio system. Before further action is taken, councilmen recommended that a representative of the Michigan state police be asked to appear before the city board and explain details of fitting the system in to the present state police radio arrangement.

Council also agreed to permit the March of Dimes committee to affix special stickers to parking meters during the January polio fund drive. Under the arrangement the meters would serve as dime collectors for the polio fund.

The city manager was granted permission to attend a city managers' mid-winter meeting in Ann Arbor Feb. 11, 12 and 13.

The annual city milk report, prepared by the Alger-Schoolcraft Health Department, was received and placed on file.

Material Bid Is $32,077.01

Low bids on necessary material for rehabilitating Manistique's water distribution system amount to $32,077.01, it was disclosed at a regular meeting of the City Council Monday night in a letter from the Francis Engineering Company, Saginaw.

The various bids for pipe and other material together with a recapitulation sheet of the several bids were presented to the council by Charles D. Manson, of Saginaw, a Francis Engineering Company official. Manson formerly was city manager and chamber of commerce secretary in Manistique.

Low bids on material for the city's water project were submitted by the following two firms:

James B. Clow and Son, Chicago—Pipe, $27,586.72; fittings, $1,995.49.

Traverse City Iron Works—Hydrants, $461.30; valves, $2,033.50.

Passage of a resolution accepting the low bids was deferred by the council pending the return of Councilman A. W. Heitman. Ordering of the material after the bids are accepted, it was indicated, will be dependent upon the sale of water department revenue bonds.

Sale of $250,000 in revenue bonds to finance the water project has been adverised. The construction contract, covering installation of various pipes and building of a pumping station and reservoir at the Intake Dam site, was let several weeks ago to the Proksch Construction Company, of Iron River.

It is our fondest wish to all our friends that this Christmas brings all good cheer and also a peaceful New Year.

Holiday Driving Hazards Stressed By State Police

The attention of motorists is again directed to the high traffic hazards of the holiday season by Sgt. N. H. Modders, commander of the Manistique state police post.

The period over Christmas and New Year's, Modders said, is regarded as the highest traffic fatality time of the year because of heavy traffic, shorter days and slippery conditions of highways.

"If you must travel during the holidays," the state police official said, "then take it easy and use every driving precaution you know. Keep your speed down to driving conditions, watch other motorists carefully, and try not to drive, if possible, after dark."

Vest Stops 10 Red Gun Bullets

SEOUL (AP) — The Army said Tuesday a soldier's armored vest fended off 10 Communist automatic rifle bullets and a closely exploding red grenade.

The soldier, Pfc. Tom Miles of Decatur, Ill., was helping a wounded buddy during a recent action when a Red infantryman ran up and began firing.

"The impact of 10 slugs across his chest at close range knocked Miles down, but they didn't penetrate his armored vest," the Army said.

Miles was still on the ground when a hand grenade exploded just a few feet away. In spite of this, he "recovered himself" and killed his Red assailant with a burst from his carbine, the Army added.

Partial Postoffice Service Promised On Dec. 26 Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Post Office Department announced that a partial mail service will be provided on Friday, Dec. 26, which President Truman has designated as an additional Christmas holiday for government workers.

The department said that as many postal workers as can be spared will be released from duty on that day.

However, the operations call for enough post office window service "to meet reasonable requirements of the public," and the normal number of mail deliveries in both business and residential areas. However, there will be no rural delivery service on that day.

Regular employes who have to work on the 26th will be given compensating time off at some later date.

The department had previously announced that Christmas Day service will be on the same basis as in recent years. All window service will be shut down, but there will be continuous deliveries of all packages, whether sent special delivery or not, and delivery of special delivery letters.

The "temporaries" will take over most of the Christmas Day service. Working regulars will either get time and a half pay or later time off, as they choose.

Nativity Scene Bans 'Roll Out The Barrel'

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS (AP)—The city council agreed Monday with local residents: such tunes as "Roll Out the Barrel" are not appropriate for a nativity scene.

Henceforth there will be no "canned" music piped into the park where thousands daily view the elaborate out-door Christmas display sponsored by the Business Men's Progressive Association.

Henceforth, the council decided, only "live" music provided at the scene by local choirs or other groups will be permitted.

Help To Europe Due For Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Monroney (D - Okla) predicted the chances for harmony between President-elect Eisenhower and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) will get an early test on the issue of U. S. aid to Europe.

Monroney, just back from an overseas vacation tour, told reporters he found sentiment strong in Europe for "a shift from the dole system of direct aid to one of self-help through increased trade with this country."

The Europeans' quest for a bigger U. S. market for their goods to replace shrinking dollar aid, he said, will present what he termed "the problem of whether the internationally minded Eisenhower people can prevail over the Taft people's high protective tariff views."

Monroney said he agrees with the recent recommendation of Secretary of Commerce Sawyer that virtually all outright grants of economic aid to Europe should be ended.

JACK MIRON — Defensive end for the Vanderbilt University football team this past seasoon, Jack Miron is an ex-St. Joe Trojan star football and basketball player. He graduated in 1950. The 20-year old son of Sheriff and Mrs. William E. Miron stands 6-3 and weighs 210. Miron will begin his junior year at Vanderbilt in March. He saw considerable action as the Commodores won three, tied two and lost five this year and is slated for first string duty next season.

Little Johnny O'Brien Nears All-Time Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The next point the amazing Johnny O'Brien scores for the Seattle basketball team will give him a new four-year record for college basketball.

The point-scoring prodigy, the first collegian to top the 1,000 mark in one season, contributed 29 points to Seattle's 102-101 victory over New York University last night and now is tied with Nate DeLong, who scored 2,592 points for River Falls (Wis.) State Teachers College. From there it's only a short hop for the agile O'Brien to the career record of 2,902 set by DeLong in five years.

Brother Scores 33

Thus, Johnny once again takes the headlines away from his twin brother Eddie, his teammate ever since they first started tossing a basketball around in their native South Amboy, N. J. Eddie scored 33 points, including two vital foul shots at the end, and was at least equally as important as his more publicized brother to the team's victory.

But it was only another contradiction in the career of the twins who went to a college 3,000 miles from home on baseball scholarships. That's right, baseball — Coach Al Brightman got the scholarships for them after seeing them perform in the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tourney at Wichita, Kan.

Infielder, Outfielder

"Pro basketball would be nice, but I'm really more interested in baseball," Johnny said last night. "I'm an infielder and Eddie's an outfielder. We both bat and hit right-handed, but I once pitched a softball game left-handed."

He didn't discuss any pro offers, but it's reported the Pittsburgh Pirates are definitely interested in him.

Last night's victory, scored before 12,752 who saw the highest-scoring game in the 19 years of college basketball at Madison Square Garden, was a triumphal return engagement for the O'Briens. When they played in the National Invitation Tournament last spring, a large delegation of family and friends came over from Jersey but Holy Cross turned back Seattle, 78-73. Johnny got 21 points, but 15 were on foul shots as Holy Cross held Johnny to three field goals.

Al's Cage Team At Hermansville For Friday Tilt

Bolstered with three former Escanaba athletes currently home from college for Christmas, Al's Tavern cage team will invade the Hermansville Community gym Friday night at 8 (CST) to take on the undefeated Rodman's Bar Foxes in an independent clash.

Pete Kutches, Trojan star who set a new Upper Peninsula high school scoring record as a senior last year; Jim Heiden, Escanaba High School ace, and Jack Miron, 6-3 former Trojan athlete, will be in uniform for Al's along with the regular squad.

The three college cagers helped Al's to a 75-62 decision over previously undefeated Harnischfeger of the Escanaba City League here Monday night. Kutches paced Al's on the scoreboard with 28 points.

Others available for action at Hermansville will be Don Paulin, Don Lewis, Jack Courneene, Bill Baker, Tippy Legault, Roy Johnson, Gerald Harris and Bob McCarthy.

Rodman's Foxes have won three straight independent tilts this season. The team is also bolstered by college cagers home from school for the holidays. Duane Girard, Vulcan High school star last year, has been the team's chief scoring threat in most games.

Coach Of Lions Digs At Brown

CLEVELAND (AP)—Coach Paul Brown had a terse "no comment" today to a long range dig at him from Detroit by Lions Coach Buddy Parker.

Brown, said Parker, is trying to make his Cleveland Browns "underdogs" for Sunday's pro football championship game with the Lions by inferring the Browns are in poor shape.

Parker also said that Brown was "harping" about injuries, to such key players as halfback Dub ones and end Mac Speedie. He still insisted today that "frankly we're not counting on them."

As for "old men," the Browns have nine players who have been with the team since it was established in 1946.

As things stand today, it appeared that the player with the least chance of playing Sunday is tackle John Kissell, who has a sprained ankle. Jones and Speedie have injured knees, and tackle-kicker Lou Groza has a set of bruised ribs.

The Lions have injury problems, too: Guard Dick Stanfel is on the doubtful list. Halfback Jug Girard and defensive end Sherwin Gandee won't play because of injured legs.

In spite of his complaint that Brown wants the Browns considered "underdogs," Detroit Coach Parker thinks his Lions have a good chance to win.

Brown, so far, won't come right out and pick the winner.

One Third Of American League Players Rookies

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly one third of all players reporting to American League spring baseball training bases in February will be rookies.

Current club rosters filed at league headquarters list a total of 303 players for spring training, 99 of them rookies. The crop of yearlings is smaller by four than last year.

Cleveland has 15 rookies; Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington and Detroit each has 14; Boston 10, and New York and St. Louis nine each.

Yankee Standouts

The outstanding rookies on the Yankees' roster are first baseman Don Bollweg and outfielder Bill Renna, both up from the champions' Kansas City American Association farm. Bollweg hit .325 in 1952 and was voted the league's most valuable player. Renna slugged 28 homers and posted .295.

Bill Skowron, sensational Kansas City outfielder, is not on New York's current list. He may return to the minors for more seasoning, depending on how he looks at the Yankees advanced spring training school for rookies.

Skowron topped the AA in runs batted-in with 134, homers with 31, total bases with 344, and tied for the lead in doubles with 38. His .341 mark was third best. Skowron, former Purdue football star, was signed for a bonus by the Yankees in September, 1951.

Top Prospects

Here are some other top prospects:

Cleveland — Dave Pope, negro outfielder, batted .352 for Indianapolis to win American Association title.

Detroit — shortstop Harvey Kuenn, bonus player from the University of Wisconsin.

St. Louis — Bill Hunter, Fort Worth shortstop, most valuable of Texas League.

Newberry Tops Great Lakes Cage Conference Standings

The Newberry Indians, coached this year for the first time by Karl Parker, ex-Brimley championship mentor, have a firm grip on first place in the Great Lakes Conference basketball standings as the eight-team circuit takes its holiday vacation.

The Indians have posted a record of three wins in three conference starts, defeating Munising 58-45, Negaunee 66-56 and Marquette 59-52.

Playing a race-horse type of ball with his cagers on the move every minute, Coach Parker has put the Indians off to one of their most successful starts in history. Parker returned to the Upper Peninsula coaching ranks this year after spending a season downstate.

Emeralds Eye Double

Coach Rudy Brandstrom's Manistique Emeralds rest in second place in the Great Lakes ladder, also unbeaten. The Emeralds, shooting for a rare double championship in the conference after copping the league grid title under Dick Bonifas last fall, have defeated Sault Ste. Marie 70-64 and Gladstone 56-52 in two league starts.

The defending champion Ishpeming Hematites, rated one of the strongest Class B teams above the Straits again this year, have made only one Great Lakes start this year, beating Munising 78-45.

Coach C. C. Watson's Hematites are undefeated in five outings this season. They defeated Escanaba 73-51 in their last start.

Munising Winless

The remaining five teams in the GL circuit have tasted defeat at least once this season. Gladstone and Negaunee are 1-1 in league play while Soo and Marquette are 1-2. Munising has yet to win an four starts.

Ishpeming's 78 points against Munising represents the highest score posted in the conference thus far this season while Marquette scored the lowest total with 34 losing to Soo.

Standings to date:

Team	W	L
Newberry	3	0
Manistique	2	0
Ishpeming	1	0
Gladstone	1	1
Negaunee	1	1
Marquette	1	2
Soo	1	2
Munising	0	4

Layne Is Ready For Cleveland

DETROIT (AP)—Quarterback Bobby Layne said today his injured leg is fully recovered.

That means the Detroit Lions will put four ball carriers at one time—not just three—into their grinding offense Sunday.

Coach Buddy Parker confirmed that Layne, one of the few running quarterbacks in T-formation football, was in perfect condition for the National Football League title game against the Cleveland Browns.

Well As Ever

"He'll run as well as ever," smiled Parker.

Layne, the team's second best ball carrier and ninth in the NFL, played in all of Sunday's victory over the Los Angeles Rams. But he ran very little.

A stretched leg ligament suffered eight days earlier kept him from cutting sideways.

X-rays showed, meanwhile, that regular defensive tackle John Prchlik can play Sunday, Parker reported. Prchlik suffered rib bruises in the Rams game.

Girard Out

But two other players—No. 2 offensive left halfback Jug Girard and defensive end replacement Sherwin Gandee—reportedly are definitely out. Both have leg injuries.

And offensive guard Dick Stanfel, a real standout as a blocker, may be considerably under par for the showdown game. Parker said Stanfel had failed to show satisfactory recovery from a hip injury and "we don't know if he will be ready."

Betsy Rawls Top Money Maker In Women Golf Ranks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Betsy Rawls, Austin, Texas, is the champion money winner among America's women golfers in 1952.

Miss Rawls won $14,505 in purses during her first year as a professional to lead all her rivals, according to Fred Corcoran, ladies' PGA tournament director.

Runner-up was Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Texas, with $12,660, including $5,000 for the "World's Championship" in Chicago.

Louise Suggs, Carrollton, Ga., was third with $10,083 and Patty Berg, St. Andrews, Ill., was fourth with $7,588.

Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Zaharias, Tampa, Fla., was out of competition most of the summer due to an operation but finished fifth with $7,503.

Wayne Cagers Eye Unbeaten Season

DETROIT (AP)—Wayne University's Tartars, champions of the first annual Motor City Classic, today hoped for the first unbeaten season in the school's 34-year basketball history.

Wayne, a lesser known basketball power, won its seventh game Tuesday night in the tournament finale before 4,757 fans, crushing previously unbeaten Duquesne, 71 to 59.

In the consolation finale, St. Mary's California edged Detroit 81-78. It was the first tournament in the University of Detroit's new $2,600,000 field house.

Wayne's best year was 1927-28 when the Tartars won 18 of 19. The toughest tests remaining this season should be St. Francis (Pennsylvania) and Niagara.

South Predicts Shrine Victory

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Coaching staffs of both the North and South all-star squads said today they had the finest collection of players they ever saw but only the South predicted a victory in the Shrine's charity football game Christmas night in the Orange Bowl.

South Coach Andy Gustafson of Miami made the flat prediction that the South will win its fourth game in five appearances.

"I'm not making any predictions, but we'll give them a real battle," said North Coach Stu Holcomb of Purdue.

Holcomb plans to alternate Dale Samuels of Purdue and Harry Agganis of Boston U., in the signal caller's post. Pete Bachorous of Illinois and Earl Heninger of Purdue will alternate at the halves with Bob Brandeberry of Kansas and Frank Brady of Navy.

Fred Franco of Navy and Chuck Hlay of Ohio State will take turns at fullback, and Hlay will play right tackle in the four-man line defense.

Ed Luke of Michigan will be used as defensive end, while the offensive flanks will have Bernie Flowers, Purdue, and Ernie Stockert, UCLA. Rex Smith of Illinois will alternate with the offensive ends.

See where collegiate football may tear a leaf from the high school rule book to deal with controversial shifts which gained fame for such teams as Notre Dame, Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Iowa last fall. A member of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations recently said that several members of the collegiate rules committee asked the prep group about its more specific rule on the subject.

The high school rule limits shifts to a "slow, sliding motion," and prohibits "quick charging motions" at the start of such shifts.

Brock Strom, Ironwood athlete who made the All-Upper Peninsula football team as a junior in 1950, won his freshman numerals as a center at Indiana University this year. He was rated one of the outstanding freshman football prospects by the Indiana coaches and is said to have a good chance of being the varsity center next year. Florian Helinski of Hurley earned a varsity letter at Indiana the past season. It was his second letter. Helinski handled most of Indiana's punting chores and saw service at the quarterback post.

Gophers Trip Illinois 77 To 73 In Big Ten

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Illinois' prestige as the nation's second ranking collegiate team in The Associated Press basketball poll dripped Tuesday night. The Illini absorbed a 77-73 defeat at the hands of Minnesota before 16,787 fans.

Coach Ozzie Cowles' inspired Gophers turned the trick by outrebounding the taller Illini and by skillfully executing ingenious defenses set to check the Illini near the basket.

There were other surprises: St. Johns of Brooklyn tumbled North Carolina State, ranked 6th, 67-56; Wayne of Michigan whipped Duquesne, 71-59, to win the Motor City Classic; Drake humbled Missouri, 77-57, and Seattle took NYU 102-101.

First Stringers Fail

The failure of Illinois first stringers to turn in their top performances aided Minnesota. In fact, it was the ball-hawking and shooting of Illini reserves in the last 15 minutes of play that kept their team in contention.

Minnesota held Illinois' 6 - 9 center, John Kerr, to 5 points and he was forced to score one of his two field goals from the outside. Kerr previously had a 21.3 average per game for three contests.

After trailing 15--14 at the end of the first quarter Minnesota built up a 36-31 halftime advantage. Midway through the third period Minnesota stretched its lead to 49-36 before Illinois substitutes made their all-out bid. With less than three minutes left Illini forward Max Hooper connected on his fourth straight field goal attempt to put the visitors back in the lead, 69-68.

Fourth In Row

Center Ed Kalafat of the Gophers got a bucket and a free throw and reserve forward Earl Johnson made it 75-69 with a field goal to settle the issue.

The victory was Minnesota's fourth straight without a defeat, three of them against non-conference competition.

Illinois outscored the winners from the floor 32 field goals to 28, but Minnesota hit for 31 points from the foul line compared with 9 for the Illini.

Minnesota (1-0) and Indiana (2-0) are leading the Big Ten at the moment while Illinois has split two conference starts.

Totally Blind, Lennox Star Spartan Wrestler

By ROBERT E. VOGES

EAST LANSING (AP)—A blind athlete at Michigan State College will spend his Christmas holidays scraping dirty dishes in the college grill.

Ted Lennox of Detroit, an outstanding sophomore prospect on the wrestling team, is happy about the prospect too.

His folks all work so he figures he'd be pretty lonely at home. So he asked for any kind of a job over the holidays that would keep him busy and among the many friends he's made at the college.

Ted isn't the kind of a fellow you feel sorry for, though. He's the kind you admire.

Totally blind, he started wrestling at the Michigan School for the Blind. He was second in the 95-pound bracket of the state high school championship in 1949 and third in the 128-pound weight in 1951.

He's good enough so that Coach Fendley Collins is figuring on starting him in the 147-pound weight in the opener against Pittsburg Jan. 3.

"Wrestling is one of the few sports a blind person can excell at," Collins explained. "Once contact is established, every pressure telegraphs the exact position of his opponent's body to the blind wrestler.

Lennox is a brilliant student. Girl volunteers at Michigan State read to the blind students to help them with their studies.

Lennox, who has a happy disposition, is always being kidded about "his women" by teammates. They claim he goes from class to class by picking up a whiff of perfume and following it like a bird dog.

Figures definitely proved that Michigan State couldn't have beaten Kansas State, rated number two in the nation, in the Spartan basketball classic.

Kansas State beat Notre Dame 86-64. That made Kansas State 16 points better than Notre Dame.

Notre Dame beat UCLA 68-60. That made Kansas State 24 points better than UCLA.

UCLA beat Michigan State 60-55. That made Kansas State 29 points better than Michigan State.

Then Michigan State beat Kansas State 80-63.

Which proved that figures can lie and must have been awfully upsetting to the odd-makers.

Happy Chandler May Be Back In Baseball

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a chance that A. B. (Happy) Chandler may be back in organized baseball—as managing director of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League. Negotiations between Paul Fagan, owner of the Seals, and the former baseball commissioner have been resumed after having been broken off two weeks ago.

At the time, Fagan had offered Chandler $25,000 a year to take charge of the Seals, with Fagan retaining the ownership. Chandler was willing to accept the post, but asked for a five-year contract instead of the two-year pact offered by Fagan. Happy argued it would require that time to rebuild the club.

Batting and pitching champions of the six top minor leagues will receive a major league trial next season. The Pacific Coast League sends first baseman Bob Boyd, who hit .320 at Seattle, to the Chicago White Sox and Johnny Lindell, who had a 24-9 record with Hollywood, to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The International League graduates outfielder Frank Carswell, a .344 hitter at Buffalo, to Detroit and Bob Keegan of Syracuse, its only 20-game winner, to the White Sox.

The American Association offers outfielder Dave Pope, a .352 hitter at Indianapolis, to Cleveland and Eddie Erautt, who won 21 and lost five for Kansas City, to Cincinnati.

The Texas League advances first baseman Frank Dunlap (.336) from Shreveport to the St. Louis Cardinals and Dave Hoskins (22-10), Dallas right-hander, to Cleveland.

The Southern Association moves up third baseman Rance Pless (.364) from Nashville to the New York Giants and southpaw Al Sima (.321) from Reading to Cleveland and George Uhaze, Albany's 18-game winner, to the Boston Rex Sox.

Ace Trojan Defensive Halfback Ineligible

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The academic fathers dealt the Trojans of Southern California a hard blow today when they ruled Jim Psaltis, one of the nation's best defensive halfbacks, ineligible to play against Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Psaltis, whose record of nine pass interceptions, which he returned for 113 yards and two touchdowns, was second best in the nation this year, was declared ineligible because he played two games on the junior varsity team at Santa Rose, Calif., Junior College in 1949.

Hugh C. Willett, faculty athletic representative at USC and president of the NCAA, made the disclosure after a secret poll of faculty representatives in the Pacific Coast Conference.

How $100,000 Hurler Came Out Of Service Unnoticed Is Puzzle

NEW YORK — (NEA)— Bill Greason is unquestionably the most under-publicized star of a Double A league in history.

Mighty few outside of the Texas League had heard of Greason until at the Phoenix meetings it developed that the Yankees, Red Sox and another club or two had offered Oklahoma City $100,000 in cash and players for his contract.

Big league front offices confess that they had little or no line on the big and strong right-hand pitcher.

"How Greason came out of the Marine Corps unnoticed by the majors I'll never know," says Sports Editor John Cronley of Oklahoma City.

"He joined us the last day of July and from then until the finish, Sept. 1, he practically pitched the Indians into the play-offs, winning eight, losing one and saving another, all within a month.

"Scouts were hot after him, but in the last week he developed a bad back muscles which he favored.

"E. J. Humphries, an independent owner, would sell at the right price, but is just as content to keep Greason for his drawing power. He packs them in, was the most magnetic attraction in the league.

Recruiting Sergeant

Standout ball players have been uncovered and landed in many ways. John McGraw and the Giants got Mel Ott for a penny postcard, for example. It pays an owner to keep his eyes open.

In the case of Greason, Humphries had given an Army recruiting sergeant in Oklahoma City a season pass.

"I've been following a pitcher in the Marines in camp papers we exchange," the sarge told Humphries one July day, when he dropped in to thank him for the courtesy. "He's lost only one game in more than two years that I know of. He beat Don Newcombe, 1-0, in a camp game in Virginia the other afternoon.

"The last paper I got from his camp said he was due to be discharged pretty soon. Maybe he'd be worth looking at. His name's Greason—Bill Greason."

Long-distance telephone calls divulged that Greason would be out in a week. An exhibition game quickly convinced Humphries that the sergeant's tip had happily dropped the type of pitcher scouts everlastingly seek smack dab in his lap.

Remindful of Black

Tom Grenwade caught up with Greason last August.

"He's a fine prospect with good pitching knowledge for a man with so little experience," reports the foxy Yankee forager who bobbed up with Mickey Mantle. "He is somewhat remindful of the Dodgers' Joe Black, though Black seemed a little faster."

A Yankee official would not be surprised if the Browns had an option on Greason. Bill Veeck once owned the Oklahoma City franchise.

Greason is not as inexperienced as Greenwade would make him appear.

Young Dodgers in the service sent in glowing reports on Greason, but the Brooks missed him this time by a week. Director Fresco Thompson of their farms the other day recalled how the Superbas would have purchased Greason from a Mexican League club three years ago had not Branch Rickey, then running the works in Brooklyn, not said no to the price. He had jumped the Negro American League.

Now Bill Greason suddenly has jumped into the headlines.

Two Children Killed On Shopping Tour

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — A joyful Christmas shopping tour ended in tragedy Monday when two small children lost their lives in a car-truck collision near Wayland.

The children, Sandra Devries 6, and her four year old brother, Richard, died when a car driven by their mother collided with a semi-trailer truck.

Mrs. Wilmer Devries, the mother, was in critical condition in a Grand Rapids hospital.

The two children were riding in the front seat of the car which crashed into the trailer portion of the truck. The truck, according to its driver, Harold Tassell, 34, skidded on the wet street and jackknifed into the path of the Devries car.

German Carnival Man Cracks Iron Curtain, Finds Joy Is Finished

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP) — Gustave Loeck has cracked the Iron Curtain, in search of joy--uncontrolled.

The 41-year-old carnival man slipped from the Soviet zone into West Berlin with his wife, two children, two wagons full of equipment, a comfortably furnished trailer and a merry-go-round.

"Show business, for the private enterprise, is finished in the Russian zone," Loeck commented from his trailer step, parked on a West Berlin lot while he awaits the chance to move to West Germany and set up shop again.

"Even joy is controlled over there," he said acidly.

Red Put On Squeeze

A sort of a Mr. Five-by-Five, Loeck says he ate well in the East but things were getting tougher and tougher. Step by step he said, the Communist state squeezed his roadside operations until he faced the choice of eventually doing too little business to survive or getting out.

The old-fashioned German carnival which has excited Hans and Fritz for generations is looked on with disfavor in the Soviet area.

"They want what they call 'people's art' now," Loeck said with a wry grin.

"The kids aren't supposed to scratch around for a few pfennigs until they can manage that wonderful joy of buying their way onto a merry-go-round. Now the state must see to it that the children's fun is nicely controlled and arranged, with Stalin's picture at the end of it."

Gets Belly Full

The steady trend to nationalizing everything in the East was creeping up on Loeck's carnival when he decided he had a belly full.

"Show people are often refused permission even to set up their merry-go-rounds and other amusement equipment," Loeck declared. "Often we were without the chance to work for months, but we had to pay taxes anyhow."

Now and then carnivals were allowed to establish themselves as part of a "people's art performance."

"They had to do it once in a while," he said, "to give the people some fun."

The Communist bosses are pretty callous about ordering carnival men around to this or that party celebration. Loeck and others were compelled to put on performances for the blue-shirted "Young Pioneers" at such reduced prices that it was a waste of time and often cost them money. To turn down such an "offer" would be to invite disaster.

Reds Seize Shows

The state sometimes would jump in and declare the carnival a "people's owned enterprise." The dispossessed owner would be lucky to avoid prison. So many of these road shows were seized in the last two years that the East zone organized a "United People's Owned Show Enterprises" corporation to handle them.

Two other factors threaten to wreck any private show outfits, Loeck said. One is the police ban against children visiting a carnival in the early evening hours. Any kids on the streets at this time are supposed to be enroute to Communist youth meetings. The second blow is the shortage of electric power, which has plagued the economically wobbly Russian zone for years.

Even the annual spurt that Christmas provides is being denied this year. The state banned the yearly Christmas fair and ordered holiday activity centered in the state-owned stores and ventures.

Loeck, busy now with paintbrush and tools giving his wagons brand new faces, expects over a period of months to ship each part to West Germany. There he hopes to peddle joy again, uncontrolled.

Sault Man Pays Fine On Plea Of Guilty To Drunk Driving

Arraigned yesterday on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, Roy Ehlin, 46, of Sault Ste. Marie pleaded guilty before Justice Henry E. Ranguette and paid a fine of $50, plus costs.

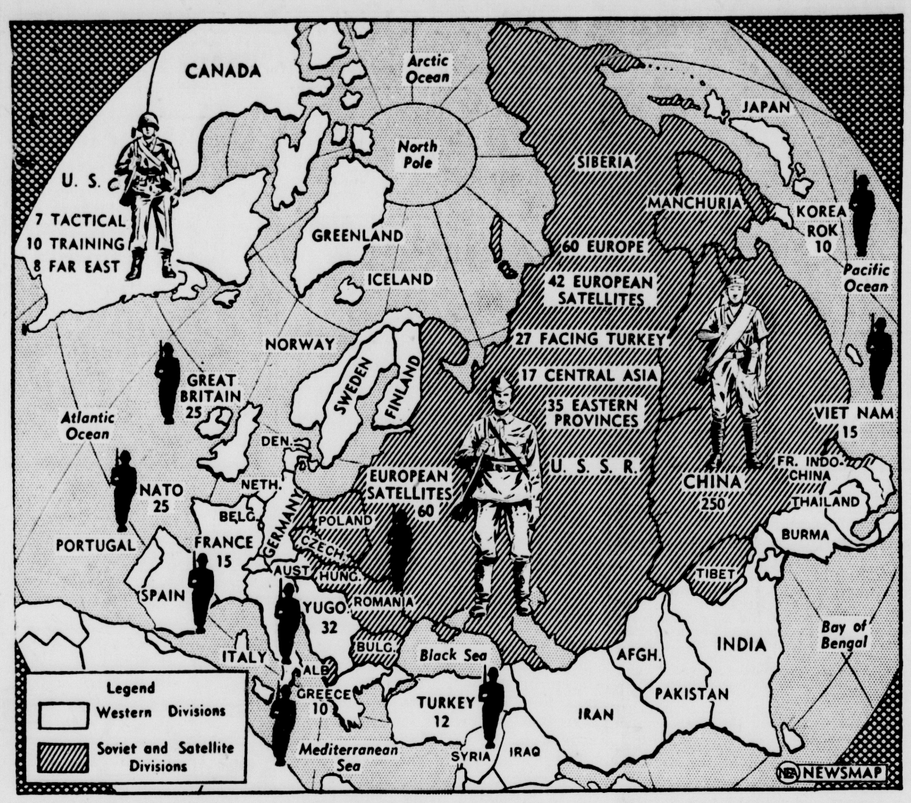
His operator's license was also revoked by the court.

Ehlin's wife, who was with him at the time of his arrest Monday night was also assessed $5 in fine on her guilty plea to being drunk and disorderely. They were apprehended by Michigan State Police on US-2, 41 in Wells township.

Love God Scrubbed

LONDON (AP)—The famous statue of Eros—winged god of love—that usually stands on tiptoe in the center of London's Piccadilly Circus—will be spending Christmas away from the city's crowds.

Workmen took the statue off its pedestal Monday and carted him off for a cleanup. They also plan to repair the fountain over which he stands and install a new water system in it before the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II June 2.



EAST-WEST BALANCE OF POWER COMPARED—According to experts of the U. S. State Department, the leaders of the Kremlin and the Soviet satellites have stationed about 491 divisions of troops in Asia and Europe, which form a potential menace to the free world. As opposed to the Communists, the West can put 175 divisions in the field. Militarily this presents a dark picture, but the odds are made more nearly even by the productive genius of the Allied powers. Above Newsmap shows how the two camps are lined up, and indicates the troop concentration in each country.

Milk Alone Not Enough For Diet Of Infants

ANN ARBOR—Milk alone is not enough for an infant's diet, according to a University of Michigan doctor.

Since milk is usually stressed as baby's best food, Dr. Ruth M. Heyn, pediatrician at the University Hospital and research assistant in the Simpson Memorial Institute, explains some mothers feel that milk is all the baby needs for healthy growth.

This is not always true, she cautions. A strictly milk diet often causes "milk anemia," the commonest form of anemia found in young children. It results from a lack of mineral iron in the baby's food.

Pointing out that iron is used in the body for the formation of red pigment in the blood cells, Dr. Heyn advises mothers to add solid food to baby's diet at an early age.

One advantage of feeding solid foods to infants when they are two, three or four months old lies in the fact that most infants will learn to eat solids as a habit at this age, she states. Mothers will less likely be confronted with a child at six or seven months who stubbornly refuses solid food.

Iron medication given for a few weeks, will improve an infant's condition if such an anemia is present, she says but cautions this should be given only under a physician's control.

Another method is to limit the amount of milk intake and encourage the infant to eat foods which contain large amounts of protein and mineral iron.

Prison For Christmas Denied Coventry Man Who Won't Pay Fine

COVENTRY, England (AP)—Derek Pickering, man of principle, was extra mad at the law today—he may not get into jail for Christmas.

Pickering prefers prison to paying a fine of 2 pounds ($5.60) for parking his car without lights overnight in front of his home on a dead-end street. Today is the deadline for coughing up or going to the pokey for two weeks.

So Pickering prepared himself to spend Christmas in prison. He called in 25 of his pals and threw an ale and pork pie party last night. Then he polished up his belt-driven 1912 motorcycle and announced he was ready to drive to Birmingham and knock on the prison gates this morning.

But prison authorities said they were unable to "promise that committal will be issued before Christmas Day." A. N. Murdoch, chief clerk to the Coventry magistrates, explained that one just can't go knocking on prison gates demanding entry. The proper procedure, he said, was to surrender to the authorities, who would handle the entrance into the jail.

The 47-year-old Pickering says it' all very irritating.

"My wife, who supports me to the end, fixed her Christmas shopping," he declared. "It's all settled as far as I am concerned. And now it seems they are going to mess it all up by not letting me in when I want to go."

Pickering insists the 2-pound fine is outrageous. He claims he should have received a police warning—and that's all. He'd been parking there for 13 years and nobody had complained before.

Two Surgeons Donate Skill For Operation On 2 Blind Children

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Two surgeons donated the skill of their hands today as Christmas presents to a brother and sister, blind since birth.

If today's operations are successful—something it will require six months to determine — Ignacio Rodelo, 13, and Emma Rodelo, 12, also can thank Mrs. Josephine Andazola. Their cases were recommended to the surgeons by Mrs. Andazola, whose Free Methodist missionary territory includes their hometown, Tecate, Baja California, Mexico.

The surgeons said the two children were born with bilateral congenital cataracts and operative treatment promises to give them 80 per cent of normal vision.

Air Waves To Carry Christmas Greetings From Polio Victim

ATLANTA (AP)—Airwaves tonight will carry the Christmas greetings of a 22-year-old polio victim who was too ill to write cards to her friends in Kentucky this year.

Doris Whittaker will tape record her holiday messages and amateur radio operators have volunteered to transmit them by ham network to her hometown, Somerset, Ky. There they'll be picked up by Ivan Kelley's station W4TUT, where her friends will be gathered.

They'll return her greetings, via radio, and their voices will be relayed to her by phone.

Miss Whittaker came here last summer to find a job. A week later she became ill and has been in Grady Hospital since.

In Osaka, Japan, a sergeant decided to give a Christmas party for orphans, with each orphan having "parents" for the day. More "parents" showed up than orphans.

Several thousand German orphans were assured of Christmas gifts—and U. S. Air Force officials in Frankfurt were slightly red-faced. The truck bearing 18,000 presents for the orphans was reported missing, and the Air Force offered a $1,000 reward for its recovery. It turned out truck and presents were in a Heidelberg parking lot all the time.

Eskymos Get Music

In a weather-beaten farmhouse atop a barren hill near Garden Valley, Tex., an aging couple began Dec. 15 giving a 10-day party that attracted thousands of East Texas younsters. The couple isn't rich, but merchants and friends helped make the party a success.

In Wheeling, W. Va., radio station WWVA gave a special Christmas greeting to about 7,000 Eskimos who live away up north in Santa Claus' backyard. The eskimos love mountain music and are always tuning in sets in remote trading posts to the station's powerful beam.

Sheik Ponders What To Do With $150,000,000 A Year

WASHINGTON.— His Highness Abdullah as Salim as Subah, Sheik of Kuwait, face one of the world's most pleasant problems —what to do with an income of $150,000,000 a year.

No income taxes cut into this bonanza. There are no restrictions on what he might buy—polo ponies or palaces, gold-plated limousines or block-long yachts.

But instead, Abdullah Salim is wisely turning his sudden wealth into a far better way of life for 170,000 people in an ancient and neglected part of the world. A remarkable transformation is taking place in the tiny sunbaked Sheikdom of Kuwait at the head of the Persian Gulf, the National Geographic Magazine reports in an article by Near East traveler Paul Edward Case.

Floating On Oil

Kuwait rests on a virtual ocean of oil. Beneath its sands are an estimated 16 billion barrels of black gold—a proved petroleum reserve roughly half that of the United States.

Tapping this pool at a current rate of 800,000 barrels a day, the Kuwait Oil Company, Ltd., owned jointly by Gulf Oil Corporation and Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, pays the Sheikdom an even 50 per cent of all profits.

By dynastic law the Sheif receives this money as personal income. He alone decides what to do with it all. In the last few years, his enlightened decisions have given a once-backward country new hospitals, schools, a modern water supply, and an enviable position as potential banker of the Near East.

Boom has come in no uncertain terms to Kuwait's mud-walled capital also named Kuwait. Shiny cars, trucks and giant earth-moving machinery rumble through busy bazaars among camels and goats. Arabs in flowing robes, nomadic Bedouins and veiled Kuwaiti women mingle with roustabouts from Texas and Oklahoma and businessmen from London. Kuwait works today at the tempo of Times Square transplanted to the desert.

From Dhows to Tankers

There are many signs left of the old way of life. While tankers gulp oil from a 4,000-foot pier extending into the Gulf from the new-born port-city, Mena al Ahmadi, Kuwait shipwrights still shape teak logs with hand adzes into improvised dhows for pearling, fishing and trading.

Behind the teak gates of Kuwait town, new cement-block buildings are replacing mud houses beside widened, asphalt streets. A new 1,200,000-gallon-a-day distillation plant will suck water from the Gulf, providing the city as well with its first major source of electric power.

Big new State hospitals, plus a gleaming trailer-dispensary that patrols outlying desert areas, are raising the Sheikdom's standards of health. All service is free. So is better schooling fast being expanded for both girls and boys, a revolutionary step in the Near Eastern desert countries.

As all these projects take shape under the magic wand of oil, Sheik Abdullah Salim has kept rigidly to his traditional unpretentious habits —no fancy trappings, no royal robes, no racing stables.

Occasionally, however, one of his ministers reveals the strange position in which Kuwait has been plunged. The Minister of Defense (of which Kuwait boasts little or none) went on record recently with a rare complaint: although Kuwait has more money then it ever saw before, no one so far has asked for a loan!

Markups Costly

MOSCOW (AP)—Two Moscow store officials have been sentenced to 25 years in prison and their property ordered confiscated because they marked up the prices on men's suits and pocketed the profit.

Press accounts Tuesday named V. Barinov, head of the ready-made garments section of the "Russian Republican Textile and Garment Trading Trust Store No. 1," and his deputy, I. Khoturitsev, as the guilty men.

Pilgrims Flock Into Bethlehem; No Room At Inns

ian churches were on hand to welcome the patriarch at the church entrance. Inside the church are chapels for Orthodox, Armenian and Latin Worship.

The climax of the ceremony will be the traditional midnight mass, beginning in the Latin Chapel of St. Catherine and concluding in the Grotto of the Nativity, where tradition says Mary and Joseph finally found shelter and where the baby was born.

The Protestant service was arranged in a similarly hallowed spot— on the terraced slopes outside Bethlehem where the angels announced the birth to the shepherds watching their flocks by night. During this service, a typical shepherd's meal of coarse bread and meat was planned.

Teachers In Japan Work Over Holiday But Have No Pupils

TOKYO (AP) — Hundreds of American schoolteachers in Japan—Department of Army civilians—will still be going to school during the holidays, while their pupils are at home.

"That's the regulation," said Lt. Col. James T. Dean of the Army's personnel section. "Regulations require that the DACs either have to be working or on leave. If they go on leave they do it without pay."

The husband of one DAC said the teachers are "hopping mad about this whole thing...sitting out at the schools twiddling their thumbs."

Students from elementary schools through high school don't have to come back to school until Jan. 5.

But teachers must report back next Monday and "work" through the week.

"What work will they do with no pupils?" Dean was asked.

"Why, there's plenty for them to do," he replied. "They can study their curricula, grade papers and inventory the libraries."

Endless Rain Transforms A Woodlot In New Jersey

WASHINGTON—What would happen to the U. S. landscape if 30 times the average fell, for example, on the crowded region between New York and Washington, D. C.?

For the last thre years, in a patch of woods in southern New Jersey, millions of gallons of water have hissed from gun-like spray nozzles as man-made rain. Strange changes have taken place. Where once was an ordinary scrub-oak woodlot, a jungle now grows.

Measured against world's record rains (Cherrapunji, India, was doused with 1,041 inches in 12 months, and averages 426 inches a year), this spot in New Jersey has the wettest forest on earth, the National Geographic Society says. The region's normal rainfall is 41 inches a year, but these few acres have received up to 1,200 inches in a year's time.

The jungle stands on Seabrook Farms, a huge mechanized vegetable garden and processing plant near the town of Bridgeton. Largest combined truck farm and frozen food factory in the nation, Seabrook Farms cover about 20,000 acres of rich flatlands in Cumberland and Salem Counties west of Atlantic City.

Its cannery and freezing plant use 12,000,000 gallons of water a day at the peak of the packing season. Disposing of so much water was a serious problem.

After trying various methods of purifying the outflow, the company had almost decided to invest a million dollars in a biofilter installation—gravel beds in which vegetable scraps and other wastes in the water would be consumed by bacteria.

John Hopkins University, however, has a laboratory for study of climate at Seabrook Farms. As a last resort, the climatologists tried spraying the river of waste water back on the land, in hope that the ground itself could be turned into a huge filter.

The first tests in an unused open field of clover failed. The soil soaked up only so much water, then turned to soup. But when the spray nozzles were moved to the edge of a patch of woods, an amazing thing happened.

No matter how much water was sprayed into the woods, it was soaked up as fast as it fell—50 inches of man-made rain in ten hours, and since 1949 up to 100 feet of water a year in certain spots.

When Seabrook's project began, the spray area looked like any other wooded area on the coastal plain. Scattered underbrush, slender second-growth oak, and poison ivy grew in the sandy soil.

Today, it is as if the woods cannot grow fast enough. Seeds germinate that would otherwise have been dormant. Small shrubs and vines twist together into a solid mat of greenery. Through the jungle-woods run far larger than normal numbers of small animals such as wood mice.

Scientists studying the changes in plant and animal life have to hack their way through this outdoor laboratory with machetes. The U. S. Geological Survey is interested in the effects of the spraying on ground water levels in the surrounding area. Seabrook Farms is trying to unravel the secret of why the woods will soak up so much water while open fields of the same soil will not. What had farming done to the soil? Can field crops be improved with tremendous doses of water?

If a jungle can be grown in the woods, perhaps more peas, potatoes beets and spinach might spring from earth soaked far beyond its normal saturation point. The possibility is being explored.

Cyclist Steals Mink

LONDON (AP) — A young man strolled into a Mayfair furrier's shop yesterday, swept a $4,000 mink coat into his arms and dashed out the front door.

As a startled showroom employe ran to the door shouting "Stop! Stop!", the mink-lifter jumped aboard his getaway vehicle — a bicycle—and pedaled madly out of sight into the traffic.

The coat belonged to a sister of the Duchess of Sunderland.

Queen Goes On Air

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth's Christmas radio address, her first as sovereign, will begin tomorrow three minutes later than usual—at 3:03 p.m. (10:03 a.m., EST). It will be the first delay since the royal broadcasts started 20 years ago.

The Queen approved the change so that more than 1,000 overseas radio stations which will carry the address can be cued in to pick up the broadcast.

Miss Blythe, born in Mt. Kisco, N. Y., said only that the wedding will be some time in 1953.
